Water supply dropping fast in suburbs

by KURT BAER

The Northwest suburbs are running a race with time as they try to head off what could easily become the gravest regional crisis in their history—a lack of water.

Wells in the Northwest suburbs are going dry. Not today. Hopefully not tomorrow.

But since 1950, the suburbs have been pumping water out of the ground faster than nature can replace it.

This "mining" of underground water results in a 10 to 20 foot average drop in the water table every year.

EXPERTS DIFFER in opinions of how much longer the suburbs can depend on well water for their growing numbers of residents and industries. Some predict serious problems as early as 1980.

Officials have come to recognize the seriousness of their problem and are looking east to Lake Michigan for help.

Whether they get there in time could decide the future of the area.

"There is no more immediate or more difficult challenge facing the communities of Northwest Cook County than our fresh water supply," Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan told the Illinois Water Resources Commission during a recent hearing at the Arlington Park Hilton hotel.

"Water rationing is no longer on the distant horizon. The time has come when something has to be done."

COMMUNITIES HAVE started to attack on three fronts: purchase water from the City of Chicago, develop an independent Lake Michigan water supply for the area, and adopt and enforce new conservation measures.

Homeowners and businessmen can expect the push for more water to cost them more money in higher water rates and special taxes.

One conservative cost estimate for constructing a water main from the suburbs to the northwest boundary of Chicago put the figure at $29 million.

Eight Northwest suburbs are currently aligned in the effort for Chicago water. Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Buffalo Grove—SHARE + 3—each have contributed $5,000 to get the project off the ground.

SHARE + 3 is only four months old and has yet to formally approach Chicago for the water it wants.

PROOF THAT THE job is not easy can be found in the 19-year-old efforts of the Des Plaines, Arlington Heights,

Mount Prospect, Palatine Water Commission (DAMP).

Interstate lawsuits over the diversion of Lake Michigan water thwarted DAMP's request for a lake water allocation from 1959 to 1966.

In 1971, DAMP finally received state authority to divert 35.9 cubic feet per second of lake water for the suburbs, only to have the allocation overturned a year later because of a lawsuit filed by the Metropolitan Sanitary District and the North Shore Sanitary District.

DAMP again requested lake water at a July 1975 public hearing before the Illinois Department of Transportation. The state's decision is expected this summer.

"We've got governments in Northeast Illinois fighting each other with tax dollars, all to get the same thing—water," Arlington Heights Public Works Director Gene Willroth told the Illinois Water Resources Commission.

"If we don't get some overall regulation, water will be so damn expensive we won't be able to afford to drink it," he said.

Arlington Heights has suggested the formation of a regional water authority for Northeast Illinois.

WITHOUT DEALING with the obvious political problems in its proposal, village officials say a regional authority is the only sensible solution to the continued depletion of ground water and the allocation of lake water.

It is a suggestion endorsed by Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert.

"I think we all envision that someday there will be a regional water authority for the area," Teichert said at a recent SHARE + 3 meeting. "I would like to see an authority not controlled by the City of Chicago, but by all the users," he said.

A regional authority could correct the inequity created when one town spends millions of taxpayers dollars to get lake water and by so doing leaves more "lower-cost" water in the ground for other municipalities.

It also could prevent one village from "robbing" a neighboring community by drilling wells too close to its border.

A REGIONAL referee to oversee the use of water in Northeast Illinois may be a sensible theory. But one member of the Illinois Water Resources Commission voices a warning.

"Don't be too anxious to invest this authority in another bureaucracy," said Richard A. Pavia, acting commissioner of Chicago's department of (Continued on Page 8)

Dan faces new foes in a very old battle

It's tough enough being the Governor of Illinois these days without having a bunch of kids, who can't even vote, breathing down your neck.

Especially in an election year, when some half-wits who work for newspapers and television stations keep wanting all the juicy facts on your campaign contributors.

Those quibblers just don't seem to listen when you tell them to hang loose on campaign funding, that everything will be cool later.

Now, Daniel Walker has more serious problems. He's really stumbled over himself this time.

Governor Dan, "The Peep's Man," has unknowingly rewritten an essential part of the educational process.

HE'S GONE and turned natural enemies into friends. Teachers and kids now like each other. Or so it seems.

That's bad. It could spell Walker's doom.

You must first understand that high school kids are constantly searching for their identity and being challenged to do something productive with their lives.

This causes all sorts of anguish. As a temporary cure, kids latch onto popular causes. This keeps them busy.

Some kids got their chance to lash back at one of society's many injustices last Friday morning when Governor Dan brought his traveling accountability session to Wheeling High School.

DAN FOUND a wonderfully responsive audience. Kids had the choice of attending his question-answer session, or they could spend the hour watching ants crawl across the cafeteria floor.

Most kids buckled up their political belts and decided they would not watch ants until later.

After all, you can watch ants struggle with hot dog crumbs any old time. It's the rare morning that a real live flesh and blood governor comes to the gymnasium.

So kids came face-to-face with Governor Dan.

You can't believe how upset kids are these days over Illinois' teacher pension program.

It's got them all thrown into a

Village report tells of police problems

by BILL HILL

The creation of an assistant chief of police position with the phasing out of the rank of captain is recommended in a management study report on the Arlington Heights Police Dept.

The "draft" report, which was developed by the village administration last year, points to several of the same departmental problems cited in a controversial report sent to village trustees two weeks ago by former police Capt. Jack Aldrich.

The 53-page report was hurriedly released to village trustees this weekend in advance of a special village board meeting scheduled for 8 p.m. Tuesday at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd., to investigate alleged problems cited by Aldrich.

IN A LETTER accompanying his critique of the police department, Aldrich questioned why the administration's study on the police department had never been released. "I was involved in it from beginning to end and totally believed it was delayed, hidden or whatever for a purpose, to which I was not made privy," his letter said.

Village officials have admitted that a "rough draft" of the report was finished in November, but say it was then set aside "because of priorities."

The reorganization suggested by the report is intended to deliver a full range of police services on each work shift.

The department's present form of organization calls for three captains to serve at the level immediately below the chief of police. Each is in charge of a separate division: field services, operations and investigations.

THE REPORT and Aldrich agree that decision-making responsibility is often unclear and that manpower is wasted with current record keeping methods.

The report, written by James Holzwart, administrative assistant, lists nine problems caused by the current structure of the police department:

- The actual operation of the department is not reflected;
- Lines of authority are ill defined, which makes it difficult to clearly identify responsibility;
- Too much supervision;
- Disparate span of control, which tends to be either too high or too low;
- A higher complement of sworn personnel assigned to the detective function than is currently needed;

- Insufficient manpower assigned to the patrol function, which dilutes coverage in patrol beats;

- Personnel assignment deemphasizes administrative operations such as record keeping, training, planning and budgeting;

- Over specialization of manpower;

- Utilization of sworn officers for (Continued on Page 5)

Social services seek funds from village budget

Budget requests from Arlington Heights social service commissions will be reviewed tonight by the village board's finance committee.

Most requests from the senior citizens' commission have been rejected in the $6.8 million budget proposed by Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson. Only a request for the village to again provide $24,000 for the senior citizens' transportation program has received Hanson's approval.

The budget hearing will begin at 8 p.m. in the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

John Gianopoulos, chairman of the senior citizens commission, last year asked the village for $64,000 to fund the transportation program, to hire a full-time coordinator and to fund a "fix-it" service. Only the subsidized transportation service was approved.

UNLIKE THE SENIOR citizens' commission, the village's Bicentennial commission toned down its budget requests this year after being cut from $30,000 to $2,500 by the board last year. This year the commission's requests total $7,200.

The Bicentennial Commission will ask the village to help fund five projects: the Fourth of July fireworks display, $1,500; a mini-park program, $2,000; historical displays at the historical society, $2,500; a Town Meeting, $600; and two special Bicentennial plays, $800.

The Arlington Heights Youth Commission is requesting $70,000. Last year it was granted $83,000.

Priester forced to land in field

George Priester was forced to make an emergency landing with his airplane shortly after takeoff Sunday, but undaunted, he and his passengers boarded another plane and continued on their trip to Indianapolis. Wheeling police said Priester, owner-operator of Pal-Waukee Airport, Prospect Heights, was forced to land his plane in a field northwest of the airport after his single-engine plane developed engine problems. Priester, his wife Veta and three other passengers were not injured, but the Cessna airplane's nose landing gear was slightly damaged. An airport spokesman said the damage resulted from the frozen, bumpy ground. The disabled plane was towed back to the airport by truck along Hintz Road.

Two injured in 2-car crash

A St. Charles man was listed in serious condition Sunday after undergoing surgery following a two-car collision Saturday at Higgins and Golf roads, Schaumburg. Deane Westland, 18, driver of one of the cars, underwent surgery at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, for a skull fracture. A passenger in the Westland auto, Marie Wermanger, 18, of St. Charles, was reported in fair condition a hospital official said. Police said the mishap occurred about 3:45 p.m. when the Westland car collided with one driven by James Kolet, 38, of 440 Glen Ln., Hoffman Estates. Kolet was not injured in the mishap.

Village releases cop report

A reorganization of the Arlington Heights Police Dept., including the creation of a new position — assistant chief of police — has been recommended in a management study on the department, written by James Holzwart, village administrative assistant. The report suggests the phasing out of the department's three captain positions which each oversee a separate division — field services, operations and investigations. The report states such a move would deliver a full range of police services on each work shift and the elimination of divided lines of authority by placing one man in charge of operations — an assistant chief of police — instead of three captains. The report lists nine specific problems caused by the present structure of the department. Among the problems cited in the report are: too much supervision, too many men assigned to the detective division, an insufficient number of men assigned to patrol functions and overspecialization of manpower.

Paramedic cost to go up?

Buffalo Grove Fire Chief Wayne Winter has proposed hiking the cost of paramedic ambulance service in the village from $30 to $50. "We have to do something — the money just isn't covering the cost of the program," Winter said. If the proposal is passed at a March 2 meeting of the village board fire department committee, the new rate would go into effect immediately. Winter said the current rate raised only $11,000 last year while the budget was $38,000, although an annual fund drive helped offset the $28,000 deficit. Winter said the financial bind is becoming worse because 40 per cent of the paramedic service's 600 annual users never pay their fees.

Daley denies city-suburb split

by STEVE BROWN

Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, who doubles as chairman of the Cook County Democratic Party, began an election year offensive Saturday apparently designed to clear pockets of independent Democrats from the suburbs.

Daley alighted from his limousine for a scant 20 minutes to speak to the fledgling Democrat Clubs of Winnetka and Wilmette-Kenilworth, but his appearance marked his first political foray into the suburbs in the last decade.

The mayor enjoyed the enthusiastic reception he received and said, "If the welcome is as warm as we received here, we will be in the suburbs again."

Chicago Consumer Sales Comm. Jane Byrne, a key political adviser to the mayor, said Daley will go to Evanston in two weeks and Palatine after Illinois' March 16 primary.

Byrne has been working to establish Democratic groups loyal to the mayor in suburban areas, where "independents" have taken control of regular party township organizations.

DALEY SAID he was not campaigning for any of the candidates running in the primary. "I leave the campaigning to the candidates."

Daley did, however, boost the candidacy of Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett, who is battling Gov. Daniel Walker for the Democratic governor nomination. The mayor's supporters were quick to discourage observations that Daley's suburban appearance was a sign Howlett's campaign was in trouble and that the mayor was taking extraordinary steps to ensure his nomination.

In his remarks to about 125 persons jammed into a storefront office at 626 Green Bay Rd., Kenilworth, Daley said, "The state needs people who understand the issues, not imagemakers who hoodwink the people."

Although he did not refer to Walker by name, Daley took a swipe at the governor when he said he did not need anyone like David Garth, Walker's advertising consultant, to create an image for him.

"Imagemakers deceive the people," he added.

THE MAYOR also proclaimed there was no barrier between the city and suburbs.

"Many attempt to divide the city and the suburbs, but there is no wall, there should be no wall. Just like Cook County and downstate, many politicians try to divide rather than unify."

The mayor's remarks were something of departure from past comments, when Daley has been critical of suburbanites who receive their salaries in the city, but leave at night to spend their money in the suburbs.

In support of Howlett, Daley said, "We need leadership who will keep their word, not mislead the people."

He said the most tragic example of a public official misleading the people was when the governor refused to fully fund the school aid formula. Daley said the Illinois General Assembly passed the state income tax, with Democratic help, on the assurance the money would be used to fund education.

"NOW WE FIND the present incumbent refused to keep his word," Daley said.

Richard J. Daley

The mayor praised the suburban group, saying "The people in city are proud of the organization you have put together on the North Shore to show you are responsive to the needs of the people."

He said political organizations are available to help people, not to force people to perform.

"I've never forced anyone to do anything they did not want to do. I tried to lead and persuade, and to show them another perspective."

Daley's suburban venture touched down in New Trier Township, the home of committeeman Lynn Williams, who has been an outspoken critic often the only critic, of Daley within the Cook County Democratic organization.

WILLIAMS ATTENDED the event, but left before the mayor arrived. He scoffed at the legitimacy of the rival club, claiming many of the members came from Chicago. A random check of cars outside the headquarters showed about half bore Chicago vehicle stickers.

Daley did not mention Williams, but did praise Niles Township Democratic Committeeman Calvin Sutker, whom he identified as the "great committeeman from Skokie Township." Sutker and some of his supporters attended the event.

The township is also part of U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva's, D-10th District. Mikva's name was not uttered by the mayor, which was no surprise, because the Evanston Democrat has frequently found himself on the receiving end of Daley's criticism. Last year Daley attempted to force a Congressional remap plan through the legislature, which would have effectively placed Mikva in a predominantly Republican district.

FORMER U.S. President Richard M. Nixon meets among the giants of our time." The meeting took place in the sprawling Great Hall of the People. En-lai. Mr. Nixon said the late premier "ranks Nixon later was hosted at a banquet.

Ford has 'no plans' to get Nixon China trip briefing

From Herald news services

President Ford has "no plans" to be briefed by former President Richard M. Nixon when Nixon returns from his trip to China, a White House spokesman said Sunday.

Deputy Press Secretary John Carlson indicated Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger apparently was speaking on his own when he said State Department officials will want to speak to Nixon about his talks with Chinese leaders.

Carlson said the administration would "be interested in anyone who goes to a Communist country, the only question being who talks to him."

In Peking, meantime, Nixon told his Chinese hosts the world's future security depended upon "the reliability and capability" of the United States and China to work together for peace.

China's new acting Premier, Hua Kuo-feng, was Nixon's host at a banquet in the Great Hall of the People, but none of the other top leaders of the world's most populous nation turned out for the modest affair.

Four years ago as president, Nixon was lavishly feted in the same banquet hall by the late Premier Chou En-lai.

A Chinese army band played the same songs — "Home on the Range," "Turkey in the Straw," "Where Have You Been Billy Boy" and "America."

But besides Hua, Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua was the only senior member of China's cabinet present at Sunday's dinner, attended by 250 persons and one of few China has staged for a nonofficial visitor.

Nixon spoke without a prepared text after Hua delivered a toast praising the former president's "courageous action" in visiting China in 1972.

Hua pledged China's continued adherence to the Shanghai communique signed during the historic visit and warned, without mentioning the Soviet Union by name but clearly identifying it, that the Kremlin had "become the main source of war."

The Chinese have stated their anxiety about U.S.-Soviet detente on several occasions, particularly during President Ford's visit last December.

Nixon alluded to their fears in his remarks, reading a section from the Shanghai document declaring U.S.

China opposition to superpower attempts to carve the world into spheres of influence.

Noting that Ford had strongly reaffirmed support of the Shanghai communique, Nixon said "the future not only of the 800 million people of the Peoples Republic of China and the 200 million people of the United States of America but the future of all people in this world depend upon the reliability and capability and determination of our two nations to work together for the cause of peace and security for all nations."

Nixon alluded to Chou's death and his own departure from power, saying, when "the interests of great powers are involved, even though the leaders may change, the interests remain the same."

In Washington, U.S. analysts are hoping Nixon's trip will help them analyze the latest political spasm to shake China.

About the only thing the analysts agree on is that the shake-up is puzzling and is going much further and deeper than they thought even one week ago.

Senate to ponder Daylight Savings Time extension

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate will consider legislation this week to place the nation on Daylight Savings Time for eight months a year instead of six in hopes of saving energy, reducing traffic accidents and cutting street crime. The House, meanwhile, votes on extending the national debt.

Daylight Savings Time would extend from the first Sunday in March through the second Sunday in November — two months longer than under the existing Uniform Time Act. DST now is to begin April 25 and ends in late October.

Supporters, armed with a Transportation Department study hailing the benefits of extended Daylight Savings Time, are confident the Senate will approve the bill Wednesday.

The study, conducted at the peak of the energy crisis, predicted two additional months would result in a 1-per-cent energy savings, 50 fewer deaths from traffic accidents and a 10 to 13 per cent drop in street crime.

Even if the Senate approves the bill, there is substantial opposition in the House. A House committee does not intend to hold hearings on it until April, so the proposed March 7 implementation date appears doomed.

The House, meanwhile, votes Wednesday on a bill to increase the current $96 billion debt limit which runs out March 15. The measure would extend the debt limit to $627 billion through June 30.

The permanent ceiling in law is $400 billion. But Congress for many years has approved "temporary" increases.

The House Administration Committee scheduled a Monday meeting to consider reconstituting membership of the Federal Elections Commission. The Supreme Court gave Congress 30 days to act after declaring the FEC unconstitutional.

Committee Chairman Wayne Hays,

D-Ohio, who earlier advocated abolishing the commission, now says he will go along with a Democratic compromise allowing the President to appoint all six members.

The bill authorizes the FEC to continue distributing federal matching funds to presidential candidates and investigating complaints of campaign violations, but only under stringent guidelines.

It may be voted out of committee early this week. When it gets to the floor, freshmen members intend to propose amendments setting up public financing provisions for congressional races as well as the presidential election.

During the next week, the House Ethics Committee may start its inquiry into the leak and publication of the secret intelligence report on the CIA. It will look into CBS correspondent Daniel Schorr's admission that he passed the report to the Village Voice.

Detectives in San Mateo, Calif. conceded Sunday that a young Brink's guard left no trail when he walked off 11 days ago with a half million dollars in untraceable cash — the biggest and neatest nonviolent larceny ever committed against the armored car company. Information on the suspect is brief. He is Richard Charles Rees, 5 feet 3 inches, age 28, white male adult, married, born in Wellsboro, Pa., and raised in San Jose, Calif. On 10-15-72 he went to work for Brink's. Notes say he left Brink's employment "hurriedly" on 2-11-76.

Dublin police clashed with crowds of Irish Republican Army sympathizers marching from Ballina to Lough cemetery Sunday to pay tribute to Frank Stagg, the IRA hero who starved himself to death in a British jail. Seven persons were reported injured when police tried to stop a truck heading the procession of 7,000 Republicans trying to reach the cemetery. None of the injuries was said to be serious.

Important Patty rulings due today

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Federal Judge Oliver J. Carter was expected to hand down two rulings Monday which will have an important bearing on the course of Patricia Hearst's bank robbery trial.

The judge said he will decide whether the 22-year-old heiress must answer prosecution questions about the "missing year" of her life as a fugitive. He will also rule on admission of a tape recording made at the San Mateo County Jail when Miss Hearst was visited by a friend shortly after her arrest.

Defense attorney F. Lee Bailey has so far succeeded in keeping out of the trial any testimony about the period between Miss Hearst's return from the East in the fall of 1974 and her capture last September in San Francisco. He contends that this period of time has nothing to do with the bank robbery for which she is on trial.

If the judge allows prosecutor James L. Browning to probe into the "missing year" it could result in Miss Hearst's implication in another bank robbery or conspiracy to rob banks.

Although not charged with the crime, she is a suspect in a bank hold-up at Carmichael, Calif., in which one person was killed and for which Steven Soliah, an intimate friend of Miss Hearst, is charged.

Browning wants to introduce the tape recording made in the jail because it would tend to discredit Miss Hearst's testimony that she was an unwilling participant in activities of the Symbionese Liberation Army. On the tape, made secretly and released by the government during Miss Hearst's early court appearances, the defendant told her friend she was still devoted to Soliah and was concerned about raising bail for him.

If Carter rules in favor of the prosecutor, Miss Hearst will most likely be called back to the stand to be questioned about the government evidence, taken at the time of her capture, which indicates she was living in the Sacramento area and had posed as a college student.

If the judge sustains Bailey's objection to that evidence, then the trial is expected to move on to testimony from various psychiatrists on the alleged "brainwashing" of Miss Hearst by the SLA.

Reagan wants 'mate' with own ideology

by United Press International

Ronald Reagan, promising to pick a running mate with his own ideology, wrapped up his New Hampshire campaign Sunday while all five major Democratic contenders took time out from handshaking to appear on television talk shows.

Before leaving New Hampshire to campaign for Illinois' March 16 primary, Reagan said, "I think if you become the nominee, you have a duty to recommend someone of the same philosophy and the same policies in the event he'd have to take over."

Jimmy Carter, Sargent Shriver, Fred Harris and Morris Udall appeared jointly Sunday on ABC's Issue and Answers, while Birch Bayh appeared on CBS' Face the Nation.

None would predict the outcome of the Democratic race, though Shriver said, "No one says I'm leading," and Bayh and Harris said they would be happy to finish third.

Carter and Udall are considered to be the frontrunners, though there have been no recent polls taken in the Granite State.

Bayh, Harris, Udall and Shriver all portrayed themselves as more liberal than Carter on issues such as energy and the economy.

"I have some differences with Governor Carter, but I could support him if he won the nomination," Bayh said. "But I differ with him on wanting to break up the big oil companies, and he's opposed to continuing revenue sharing. But he's a lot better to me than Gerald Ford."

The other three candidates all said they favored a government jobs program to spur the economy and attack unemployment.

And on the education front...

Dan faces new foes in old war

Lizzy. Some kids even sounded like they believe the pension plan is going broke. Maybe they heard that somewhere.

ANYHOW, THERE were lots of questions on the pension program. Governor Dan even had to defend his 1972 alleged campaign promise of full funding for teacher retirement.

Wow, I thought, kids are really getting smart these days. Next thing you know, they're going to want independent study and a smoking lounge.

But something seemed wrong here. A few pension program questions were being read from little white sheets, just like they'd been given out rather than hall passes.

I began to wonder if those questions hadn't been planted by some civic-minded teachers who want their newfound kid friends to have a well-rounded education.

COULD THAT BE possible? Naw, I told myself. Kids are becoming more aware every day. It's just natural that they're all upset about the teacher pension program.

But then again, why not?

Wouldn't it be smart to sneak some teacher pension program questions in among the queries about marijuana, the Equal Rights Amendment, abortion, Governor Dan's sex life and the

Mike Klein's people

American Nazi Party's role in Illinois politics?

It would be smart reporting to ask some people.

"One of my teachers told me to ask a question about the teacher pension plan," admitted a sophomore girl.

Another girl agreed. She said "all that teacher stuff" had been planted questions.

The girls also said one teacher wanted to know why Governor Dan conducted a walking campaign four years ago. That shows that teachers sometimes write bad questions.

EVERYONE KNOWS that Governor Dan walked because Mayor Daley would not let him have a car.

There were tons of education questions. They dealt with special education programs, vocational rehabilitation funding and whether tax increases were necessary. One person even asked why Walker was going to cut back on summer school.

That came as a real surprise to Governor Dan. He didn't know he had anything against summer school.

Even though Governor Dan said, "There is no priority over education," you wondered if some people in that gymnasium who work nine months every year did not believe him.

OF COURSE, no teachers ever asked anything. It's much easier to send a kid up against Governor Dan.

In the long run, "The Peepul's Man" did rather well with those young people. He generally fares well in these sessions. The governor has a strong presence before crowds. He does not back down and that is admirable.

The young people cheered when Governor Dan said that he will not sign any bill increasing tuition at state-funded universities.

And they cheered again at his announcement that greater funds are being budgeted for college scholarships.

Walker found himself among friends when he told the 2,000 students that mass murderers or the terrorist bombers who struck in New York recently ought to be executed.

"If we could execute them," Governor Dan said in his booming best tones, "We'd start doing something about terrorism in the United States."

PRETTY SOON, he was gone. Governor Dan always ends these sessions with the same thought:

"It's a campaign not between Dan Walker and perfection. It's a campaign between Dan Walker and a real live person named Michael Howlett."

He left to a smattering of applause. It was probably a successful stop for Governor Dan.

He scooped points with at least one new fan. Jeri Wallace, a sophomore, had not even planned on attending.

"YOU KNOW what I told my Mom and Dad," Jeri said.

"Walker's coming to school. I ain't going to the assembly. That's exactly how I said it."

"But I went. I'm glad I went," Jeri said.

There's just one little bug that she has about Governor Dan, "The Peepul's Man."

"Can you tell us who supports his campaign?" Jeri asked. "What's the big secret? He's making it sound bad."

Don't know, Jeri. Why not ask your teachers. Perhaps they've got the answer someplace on a little white slip.

Jim Thompson hopes to bowl 'em over Saturday

Bowling alleys appear to be on the verge of replacing factory gates as the favorite place for politicians to press the flesh with potential voters and Republican gubernatorial candidate James R. Thompson has announced he will campaign before the world's largest mixed bowling league.

Thompson said he will meet with more than 800 bowlers Saturday who belong to the Kings and Queens League at the Miami Bowl.

The candidate's appearance will follow a meeting with the Illinois League of Women Voters in Springfield.

Thompson is expected to bowl with league officials.

Anderson raps Walker

Joan Anderson, a Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, charged Gov. Daniel Walker with being the kind of administrator that has made "everyone cynical about the ability of government to do anything at all."

Mrs. Anderson's charges came during a St. Louis press conference.

She charged that federal grants to Illinois sanitary districts have been held up nearly one year because of delays by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency. Mrs. Anderson is a trustee of the Metropolitan Sanitary District.

She said the delays also have caused problems for persons seeking information about state government. Mrs. Anderson has proposed to use the lieutenant governor's office as a clearing house for government information if elected.

Food prices drop: survey

The latest results of a food price survey in the 10th Congressional District indicates prices have dropped slightly in the last three months.

The survey, which is being conducted by aides to U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, indicates prices dropped 1.4 per cent between November 1975 and January 1976. The drop was based on a market basket of food items. Meat prices in supermarkets in the district dropped about 7.1 per cent, Mikva said.

Mikva and his staff have been surveying food prices since June 1974. The survey reported food prices rose 14 per cent in 1975.

Mikva said U.S. Dept. of Agriculture officials have attributed the drop in meat prices to a more abundant supply of grain.

Women tell endorsements

The Illinois Women's Political Caucus has endorsed 19 women and one man for election in Illinois' March 18 primary.

The lone male to garner the support of the group was Republican Robert Williams who is running for the Illinois House in the 38th Legislative District.

Women candidates who gained support of the group included Joanne Alter and Joan Anderson who are seeking the Democratic and Republican nomination for lieutenant governor re-

Elk Grove GOP officers

The Elk Grove Township Republican Organization elected new officers and directors for the 1976-77 year.

The group reelected Bernard Lee of Mount Prospect as president, Edward Remus, vice president; Nita Stamm, secretary, and George R. Busse, treasurer.

The directors of the organization are Arthur Stevens, Ralph Jackson, Richard Hall, Alan Abrams, Spruill Beckstrom, Barbara Hodlmaier, Harold C. Harvey, Jack C. Theobald, and Marilyn Rood.

Candidates night planned

The Palatine Township Democratic Club will hold a candidates night at 8 p.m. Feb. 25 at the Palatine Township Hall, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine.

State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and Joan Brennan of Elk Grove Village, who are both seeking nominations to run for seats in the Illinois House from the 3rd Legislative District, have been invited to attend.

Several other candidates have been also invited to attend.

Dem dinner sparks animosity

Norman-Chapman rift growing

by STEVE BROWN

The split between Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman Donald Norman and State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, has widened, with Norman now openly refusing to support Chapman for reelection.

Norman's comments came after the organization's annual dinner dance, which may have created more animosity than party solidarity among active Democrats in the area.

Norman did not mention Chapman's name during the evening Friday, which included speeches by a seemingly endless line of candidates, including Sec. of State Michael Howlett, Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan and State Senate Pres. Cecil Pardee, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for attorney general.

QUESTIONED AFTER the dinner about why the 12-year Democratic veteran's name did not arise during the evening, Norman said, "We support Joan Brennan."

Chapman was hospitalized with a broken ankle at Northwest Community Hospital and did not attend the dinner. Brennan, an Elk Grove Park District commissioner, also is seeking election to the Illinois House from the 3rd Legislative District as a Democrat. Voters traditionally have elected only one Democrat from the district.

Norman said the organization does not oppose anyone's candidacy, but when asked directly if he supported Chapman, Norman would say only "We support Joan Brennan." Norman offered no reason for his split with Chapman.

Chapman said Sunday Norman has not invited her to a Wheeling Township Democratic Organization function for more than a year.

"It would be nice to know if this is a stand of the committeeman or of the organization. If it is the stand of the organization, I wonder when they decided to do it."

but Norman did not allow him to speak.

Several reliable sources suggest Norman is opposed to Chapman, because of vote to support Gov. Daniel Walker on the veto of $115 million in state school aid funds. But they also say Norman still is angered by Chapman and several other active Democratic women because he was not elected as a delegate to the Democrat's mini-convention in Kansas City in 1974.

While introducing several candidates, Norman also sparked a walkout by a handful of supporters of former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter.

While promoting his eligibility as a candidate for delegate to the Democratic National Convention pledged to U.S. Sen. Hubert Humphrey, Norman criticized Carter supporters for distributing Carter's literature without Norman's permission.

"IF THIS IS what Jimmy Carter has to do to be elected president, then it is pretty sneaky," Norman said.

Several Carter supporters, including Steven Maddock, of Elk Grove Township, a Carter delegate candidate walked out.

Teacher of Year supports humanism in the classroom

by PAM BIGFORD

A teacher was all she ever wanted to be and now they say she's the best.

Lucille Staahl, a sixth-grade language arts teacher at Rand Junior High School, 2550 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, has been chosen Teacher of the Year in Arlington Heights Dist. 25.

Mrs. Staahl, the fourth female generation of her family to enter teaching, said she became a teacher "because I never thought of doing anything else."

In her almost 20 years of teaching in the Bay Shore Public Schools of New York and in Dist. 25 at South Junior High, Westgate, Windsor and Rand Junior High schools, Mrs. Staahl has seen many changes in education.

THE MOST significant change she sees is the present "trend toward a more humanistic approach in education — the realization that each student is someone in distinction to someone else, equipped with his own set of experiences, values, interests, talents, needs and modes of learning, and that someone is important and worthwhile."

Mrs. Staahl's interest in children extends beyond the classroom.

A resident of Arlington Heights since 1944, Mrs. Staahl owned and operated a Dramatics School for young people for seven years. Her students performed for orphanages and hospitals in the Chicago area.

MRS. STAHL also had her own weekly radio program, which often was taped in front of a children's audience at Arlington Heights Memorial Library. She and her husband, a nuclear physicist, were among the 13 people who established the Arlington Heights Village Theatre. They have been active in promoting the arts in the town.

Mrs. Staahl grew up in New York, attended Syracuse University and received her bachelor's degree from the University of New York. She received a master's degree from Roosevelt University and has completed graduate work at the University of Illinois, Bradley University and Northwestern University.

Mrs. Staahl and her husband have seven children, "all products of Arlington Heights schools." One is attending the University of Illinois and the others are in teaching, law, professional theater and television, publishing and medicine.

MRS. STAHL was chosen Teacher of the Year by fellow teachers. She will now prepare a scrapbook of significant events in her teaching career in the past seven years in Dist. 25. Her name will then be submitted for state competition.

Last year Julia Walsh, from Olive School, 303 E. Olive, Arlington Heights, was named the Dist. 25 Teacher of the Year and was chosen Illinois Teacher of the Year. She is now in national competition.

Mrs. Staahl said, "Working with young people to me is both challenging and rewarding. At the same time it is awesome to realize the tremendous responsibility that is mine — the education of someone else's child."

"The least I can do is try in some small way to repay to others what those dedicated teachers of our own children did for them," Mrs. Staahl said.

Village report cites cop problems

taks which could be more efficiently performed by civilian personnel.

Immediate needs in the police department require the reduction of the number of divisions from three to two and the elimination of divided lines of authority by placing one man in charge of police operations, the report says.

This change "retains all specialization while reorganizing the supervision of specialization," the report says. It is also intended to upgrade personnel and eventually reduce the number of supervisors necessary.

THE LONG-RANGE goal is "a strict command structure which provides for a (team) chain of command which is intended to deliver the full range of police services on each shift."

The report also calls for the restructuring of the department's "beat" system. Currently there are 10 men working six beats on all three shifts. The report recommends that the first shift (midnight to 8 a.m.) remain the same, but that the second shift have 13 men on seven to eight beats and that the third shift have 14 to 16 men on 10 beats.

The report does not recommend any immediate increases in personnel or department vehicles. Furthermore, it suggests that the department's size continue to be one officer per 1,000 population, although a common standard in the nation is one officer per 750 persons in the community.

The way we see it

Voters unhappy with Dist. 54

The overwhelming defeat of the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 tax rate increase should serve as a clear warning that the community has not accepted the need for more funds for the district.

Dist. 54 residents voted down all three referendum issues by a two-to-one margin, denying the district increases in its education fund and building and maintenance fund as well as bond money needed to complete an administration center.

Prior to the vote, many residents complained that information about the referendum was lacking. Although voters repeatedly asked what steps would be needed if the referendum failed, officials refused to speculate.

The board and administration is now paying for that lack of information.

In response to this defeat, we believe the administration should prepare a series of options for the board to consider.

We would like to see proposals for program, staff and administration cuts, an assessment of class sizes, space needs, enrollment trends and administrative recommendations on various ways a budget deficit can be avoided in the future.

We feel the Dist. 54 board will have a better chance of convincing voters there is a need for increased taxes in the district once the facts are available and the alternatives are clear.

Few more years left!

There's GOOD news this morning, but few of us will be around to appreciate it.

The news is our battered universe still has a few good years ahead of it — between 10 billion and 30 billion, at least.

Dr. Frank D. Drake, director of the National Astronomy and Ionosphere Center at Cornell University, is the bearer of the good news.

He excited scientists at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science recently with the report.

For the sake of the universe, 30 billion years of life is the best of news. But for those of us who must face such horrors as income tax filing time — it's coming up on us quickly — we'd probably bet that the International Revenue Service will be around until that final day, whenever it is.

'Two-faced,' says Maddox

Another view of Carter

by TOM TIEDE

Atlanta, Ga. — There was a time when Lester Maddox thought well of Jimmy Carter. And apparently vice versa. They were competitors for Georgia's 1966 Democratic gubernatorial nomination, but not fierce adversaries, Maddox recalling the peanut farmer as "a nice fellow." And in 1970 they were cozy enough to team up on the same statehouse ticket, headed by Carter, both men traveling the stump saying kind and laudatory things about each other.

Then, shortly after Carter moved into the governor's mansion, he passed the word that his political relationship with "ole Lester" was merely a marriage of convenience. "He started saying he was friendly to me only to win the election," Maddox says. "He started to talk about me behind my back. One day he called me into his office and told me right out that if I ever opposed him on any issue, he'd fight me with the full government resources of the state of Georgia."

SO IT IS that Lester Maddox became perhaps the most villainous public enemy of the man who is now thought by some to be the leading Democratic candidate for the presidency. "He's two-faced," says Maddox of Carter, "he's the biggest phony I've ever known, and I just hope to God the American people find it out before it's too late."

Phony? Jimmy Carter? The accusation is not easy to digest. The quiet Georgia gentleman, a "born-again Christian" as he says it without discomfort, seems the antithesis of deceit. Yet even allowing for the customary exaggerations of the eccentric Maddox, a brief review of Carter's four years as Georgia governor hints of evidence that his idea of leadership can be at odds with fidelity and even democracy.

Some of Maddox's charges are thin.

He says as governor Carter would "lie openly" about such matters as the number of people who attend his inaugural address, multiplying the real figures (4,000-5,000) by as much as two. Aside from this fluff, Maddox makes a good case for the argument that Carter ran a redneck campaign when it served him, and waxed enlightenment when that course became more profitable.

"Besides all the nice things he said about me, he also worked hard to get an endorsement from George Wallace. He used former Gov. Marvin Griffin, who's friendly with Wallace, for this purpose. Since then, he's denied having anything to do with politics of that sort."

So far as his leadership was concerned, Maddox remembers Carter as being "expensive and contrary." He says Carter's reorganization of state government (he consolidated 300 agencies into 22) cost the state "some $300-400 million." He says Carter added more $20,000-and-above executives to government in his four years "than were named in the entire previous history of the state." He says Carter instituted an early retirement "bribe" for judges which doubled their pensions if they accepted — "all so he could appoint his friends to the vacancies."

Though no doubt colored, Maddox's accusations are not inventions. The idea that Carter is a political opportunist with dictatorial tendencies is widely shared in Georgia. Another bitter critic, in fact, is one-time Carter supporter Tom Murphy, presently speaker of the Georgia House. Murphy says he backed Carter in 1966 and again in 1970, "but I had to give up when it became clear he just isn't the fellow he says he is. He's fooled a whole lot of people that way."

As governor, says Murphy, Carter "tried to run the state the same way he once commanded a Navy submarine — his way or else. He never asked for any advice, any suggestions, he just gave orders. Consequently his relationship with the legislature was very bad." So bad, reportedly, that Carter once tried to steal the power from the Georgia Senate to appoint its committee chairmen. Maddox, as president of the Senate then, and the man who eventually blocked the grab, says the incident "exposed Carter once and for all for what he is, whatever that is, and I admit I don't really know what it is."

Actually, few in the nation know what the heck Jimmy Carter is. Perhaps the best way we can hope to know what he has been: good man and bad. Born again or not, there are no seraphs running for president. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Harper trustee rips Walker view

I should like to respond to Governor Walker's comments on the community colleges of the State of Illinois by saying first of all that I feel he has misinterpreted the true purpose of the existence of these colleges: to serve the entire community they represent. I personally feel that the information which the Governor gave was lacking in sufficient detail to justify the statements he made.

The Governor comments that only vocational education and basic education for students unable to enter other colleges should be provided. In this era of high-cost education, many parents cannot afford to send their children away from home to educational institutions with high tuition. The students at a community college are not merely those individuals who cannot qualify academically for prestige schools as the Governor has implied; the majority of Harper students must work to supplement their educational expenses. Vocational education is of unquestioned value; but to state that there are no other purposes for a community college is to demonstrate a remarkably short-sighted view of the educational functions which I feel our college must perform.

I also feel the Governor's comments concerning "consumer-oriented" courses were misleading. The continuing education or "consumer-type" courses are entirely self-supporting. The financial burden of these courses is not borne by the taxpayers, but rather solely by those who enroll in the courses. Classrooms are provided for continuing education programs only after the demands for credit classes have been met; credit classes always receive top priority.

The success of the recent referendum indicated approval by the taxpayers of the programs which Harper offers to the community. Harper provides services for senior citizens through the Senior Citizens' Program, for the educationally deprived through Adult Basic Education; for the handicapped through the Hearing Impaired Program; for housewives as well as for women who wish to re-enter the work force through the Women's Program and through the many career programs.

The college does not advertise for the purpose of increasing enrollment; very little actual advertising is done and the sole function of that advertising is to notify the public of dates of registration or other important news regarding enrollment which we feel the public has the right to know. This type of paid advertising is done on a very limited basis; most information concerning course offerings or schedules is not presented to the public in the form of paid advertisements, but rather as notices in the press.

The Governor further remarks that colleges should adjust to decreasing enrollments; this statement is directly contrary to the actual trend experienced at Harper College. Our enrollment has increased dramatically and our projections show no decline in this trend. Despite smaller enrollments in elementary schools, the fact that the average age of the Harper student is 27 illustrates that citizens of all ages are finding an interest in returning to school later in life. Some wish to change their occupation; some wish to re-enter the work force; some seek further knowledge in their chosen careers, and some find the continuing education to be a personally satisfying experience. The "frills" described by the Governor are not considered to be "frills" by the citizens who support and participate in the continuing education classes.

Fence post

letters to the editor

Fire dept. rebuts celebration charges

EDITOR'S NOTE: This letter is directed to the authors of a letter which appeared in Saturday's Fence Post and criticized the use of an ambulance to "celebrate" the recent vote to incorporate Prospect Heights as a city.

I am sorry that you did not consider the department's actions on referendum night proper or appropriate. Your letter clearly represents your feelings on the matter, based on the knowledge available to you. I would like to add to your available knowledge and also correct a misapprehension that is implied by your reference to "our city ambulance."

I think it should be made clear that the ambulance you refer to is not a city ambulance, but the rescue squad of the Prospect Heights Fire Protection District. The fire protection district is a separate and independent governmental agency and is not part of the new city of Prospect Heights. The district is responsible for providing fire protection for certain areas that happen to be part of the city of Prospect Heights. Other than a similarity of names, no legal or political relationships now exist or will exist in the future unless the voters decide to create such relationships. We are governed by an appointed board of trustees. The fire department does not belong to the city and the volunteer firemen are not employees of the city. We firemen are residents and taxpayers of the fire protection district, just like you. We are concerned about the taxpayers' dollars; they're our dollars, too.

I cannot agree with your contention that the rescue squad should only be employed as an emergency vehicle. In addition to functioning in our primary role as protectors of life and property, I believe there is also an obligation on our part to be active in community affairs. If we did agree to utilizing our equipment only in emergency situations, we would then have to refuse to display or parade our equipment for any community activities (such as Memorial Day, Independence Day or Oktoberfest), since by your standards this would be an improper use of our equipment. These occasions fall into the same category as referendum night, they are not emergency situations. They are, however, community occasions and we intend to continue the volunteer fire service tradition of being active in the community.

I assume and hope that part of your concern is based on the possibility of an emergency situation occurring while we are "screaming," "flashing" and "chattering" through the night. It is a standing and enforced rule of the department that no vehicle leaves the station unless it is manned by properly trained personnel. This means that when our rescue squad is on the street it is manned by trained and certified paramedics and emergency medical technicians. Also, the vehicle is in radio communication with our station so that immediate response to an emergency is possible.

I must agree with you that the news media are prompt. WBBM News Radio had the news on the air just minutes after they called the fire department to get the results.

Part of our intent in chattering about the streets was to let people know the results so that they would not follow WBBM's course and call the fire department emergency number. You see, when you call that number it rings not only at the fire station but also in a number of firemen's homes. This assures that the emergency number is always manned even when there are no men in the station. We were hoping we could keep the emergency lines clear for genuine emergencies and give the folks on the fire lines a little peace on Saturday night. Based on our past experience, we think we cut out about 150 possible calls. Even so, we received about 30 calls that night.

In closing, I would like to invite you to the meetings of our board of trustees. These are public meetings and are held on the third Tuesday of each month, 7:30 p.m. at the fire station. Also, if you would like to visit the station, may I suggest any Wednesday night.

The almanac

(by United Press International)

Today is Monday, Feb. 23, the 54th day of 1976 with 312 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase.

The morning stars are Mercury and Venus.

The evening stars are Mars, Jupiter, and Saturn.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Pisces.

German composer George Frederic Handel was born Feb. 23, 1685.

On this day in history:

• In 1942, a Japanese submarine fired 2 shells at an oil refinery near Santa Barbara, Calif., 2½ months after Pearl Harbor.

• In 1945, six members of the 5th Division of the U.S. Marines planted an American flag atop Mt. Suribachi on the Pacific island of Iwo Jima.

• In 1969, President Richard Nixon arrived in Belgium to start a tour of Europe.

• In 1972, President Nixon conferred in Peking with Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai.

A thought for the day: Thomas Jefferson said, "When a man assumes a public trust, he should consider himself as public property."

Chicago trek just short trip for eager traveler

Evelyn Heinz of Mount Prospect wins $5 for her Backward Glance to the immigrants who came to America at the turn of the century.

My grandparents came from Czechoslovakia in the wave of immigrants who, in the early 1900s, migrated across the ocean to fulfill their dream of living in America. They were determined to establish a new home for themselves, their children and their children's children.

Like many other young men, my grandfather first set out to get work and a home before sending for his young wife.

My grandmother's story of her travels to finally reach Streator, Ill., is one I will never forget. Left alone to follow her husband across the ocean, she gathered courage to sell all her worldly belongings, keeping only a few mementoes which she sewed into a thick feather tick. With her 2-year-old daughter (my aunt) in her arms, she left the country of her birth and set out for America.

THE BOAT TRIP was difficult, as was the long journey by train to Chicago, where she was to change to another train for Streator.

The humor in the story is this. Arriving in Chicago from New York, she was ushered to a big, closed, black iron gate to wait for the train to Streator. She took hold of the ticket taker's arm. Boldly pointing to a map on the wall behind him, she exclaimed in the best English she could muster, "Mister, please, open gate. Look, Streator not far from Chicago. I will walk down track rest of way. Just tell me what track I have to follow."

Her impatience to reach her destination got the best of her, though it was still 92 miles away. Indeed, on the map the distance from Chicago to Streator was only a few inches!

Send your Backward Glance to Eleanor Rives, Paddock Publications, 601 W. Golf Rd., Mount Prospect, Ill. 60056. Include your name, address and phone. There is a $5 award for each story published.

Hearings set on educational issues in March

Three public hearings to get recommendations for educational issues to be presented in the Illinois General Assembly will be held during March by the State Board of Education Legislative Committee.

Hearings will be held from 1 to 4 p.m. March 1 at the Gail Borden Public Library, 200 N. Grove St., Elgin; March 4 at Carbondale High School East, Ill. Rte. 8, Carbondale; and March 5 Macon County Building, Wood and Franklin streets, Decatur.

Testimony presented at the hearings is limited to five minutes per person. Written testimony can be submitted at any length. Individuals wanting to testify should contact the IOE information center at 100 N. First St., Springfield, Ill., 62777, or at 217-782-4321, by Wednesday.

Issues the state board currently is interested in include a bill to improve state aid payments to school districts, a bill to fund laws affecting schools passed by the legislature last session, and other bills that affect state financing of schools.

Automotive group elects new officers

Noel DeBlens of Hoskins Chevrolet, Elk Grove Village, was recently elected president of the Automotive Business Managers Assn.

Other new officers include John Hennes of D&M Ford, Romeoville, vice president and Art Nelson of Northwest Lincoln-Mercury, Schaumburg, secretary-treasurer. The association will meet Thursday at Orgo's restaurant in Hillside.

Group president says:

Slams against buying clubs are 'political move'

Recent charges against consumer buying clubs by Gov. Walker's consumer advocate Celia Maloney are a "political move" to gain public attention before primary elections, said the president of a buying club Friday.

James Gagan, president of the United Consumers Club, Inc., Schererville, Ind., said her misrepresentation allegations are "half-baked." Citing her words as a "sophomoric excess in prepubescent senility," Gagan said his club charges members lower prices than the costs cited by Maloney in a Feb. 11 announcement. The club has offices at 1637 Oakton Pl., Des Plaines.

Gagan's statement follows the Thursday announcement by Consumers Cooperative Club, Chicago, that it filed a $1.5 million lawsuit against Maloney in Cook County Circuit Court. The Chicago club said it suffered damages because of Maloney's warnings about exaggerated charges and high membership fees of buying clubs.

IN ADDITION to United Consumers Club and Consumers Cooperative Club, Maloney cited the Consumers Guild of America in Berkeley and Consumer Group Purchase Plan, Chicago. She said 45,000 Illinois residents joined the clubs in the past 8 years, paying at least $17 million in fees to obtain discounts on purchases of appliances and other items.

Gagan said Maloney did not use a representative list of merchandise for price comparisons in her study of buying club activities. The 15 per cent delivery charge she listed is incorrect, Gagan said.

The Consumers Cooperative Club, which has a Park Ridge food center, charged that Maloney's report is a "malicious attack." The club president said full price disclosure is offered to members in addition to a money-back guarantee. The club has approximately 3,000 members.

Crisis by 1980?

Suburb water supply getting low

water and sewers.

Cling the decades of legal wrangling over the use of Lake Michigan water, Pavia said the suburbs may have to go to the U.S. Supreme Court for a decision about the water.

"You're really racing the clock," he said.

And as the clock ticks down, there are indications that the local well water supply situation is steadily worsening.

Last December, Rolling Meadows reported an unexplained 100-foot drop in its water table. City Engineer James Muckdowney estimates that it could cost $1.5 million to upgrade the city's system of six wells.

MOUNT PROSPECT also reported the 100-foot drop in one of its wells. Village officials are reluctant to spend millions of dollars on new wells, for fear those wells will be obsolete in a few years as water tables continue to drop.

Elk Grove Village officials requested a 1980 allocation of 5.65 million gallons of Lake Michigan water a day. The village already is at or near the maximum depth in many of its wells, said Village Mgr. Charles Willis. Community officials are hoping for a lake water commitment by 1980 in order to head off more serious problems.

Water in Wheeling's three deep wells is dropping about 10 feet per year, according to a recent consultant's report. Water from three other shallow wells is poor in quality, with high iron and hydrogen sulphide contents. Filtration plants are needed.

Wheeling is starting a $3.5 million program to improve its water distribution and storage system. Officials hope it will remedy short-term problems.

Palatine plans to add two more wells to bolster its system. Over the last six years, at least one well has broken down each summer, leading to sprinkling bans. Palatine's system is described as adequate for the present, but as new development continues in the village, more water will be needed, officials say.

Buffalo Grove officials are eyeing two sources for Lake Michigan water. Already a part of SHARE + 3, the village also is considering seeking an agreement with Lincolnshire to buy lake water from Highland Park.

HOFFMAN ESTATES Village Mgr. John P. Dixon said he is hoping SHARE + 3 will have lake water by 1980. There is no critical water problem in Hoffman Estates now, he said but, "We're always open to new options for water."

An exception to the well worries among Northwest suburbs is Des Plaines, which has been buying water from Chicago since 1964, and has asked the Illinois Department of Transportation to renew its allocation.

The current contract with Chicago allows Des Plaines to purchase a minimum of 5.5 million gallons a day and a maximum of 11 million gallons daily. Amounts increase gradually to 1984, when a 7 million gallon minimum and 14 million gallon maximum will be allowed.

Des Plaines relies on Chicago for 75 per cent of its water. The remaining 25 per cent comes from the city's six wells where, as elsewhere, water tables are dropping.

Chicago charges Des Plaines 37.33 cents per 1,000 gallons of water. Des Plaines sells the water to its customers for $1.01 per 1,000 gallons. The "profit" is used to pay for maintenance, bonds and employee salaries in the water department.

A 1964 STATE statute creating the Metropolitan Sanitary District requires Chicago to supply water to all municipalities served by the MSD, including all the Northwest suburbs.

The water must be available at the city limits and sold at a rate not exceeding that charged Chicago residents.

An allocation of Lake Michigan water by itself will not end the possibility of suburban water shortages. A water storage and distribution system, water rates and perhaps a regional water authority will be just some of the remaining problems.

But without a supply of lake water, an acute water shortage in the Northwest suburbs would seem to be only a matter of time.

Federal red tape cost reform urged

Immediate reform in the paperwork requirements of government agencies is needed, according to an Illinois State Chamber of Commerce spokesman.

James H. Beaumont, government regulations manager for the state association, testified at a Chicago hearing of the Commission on Federal Paperwork. He was among business representatives who criticized the costs to consumers and businesses for government paperwork.

"Few realize the regulatory burden the business community faces in the form of paperwork by governmental agencies — commonly known as red tape," Beaumont said. He urged simplification, elimination and consolidation of required forms.

The burden of government paperwork is one reason why small businesses find it difficult to keep their doors open, Beaumont said. A recent state chamber survey shows small and medium-sized companies must fill out 166 separate forms for state and federal agencies each year, excluding tax returns. "This alone could involve some 800 employee hours, assuming the company has no layoffs, no pollution problems, no work-related injuries, for which many additional forms are required," he said.

AMERICAN BUSINESSES spend approximately $40 billion a year to file required government forms, said

Ronald Lankford of the Specter Freight System, Inc. Lankford testified Wednesday before the paperwork commission in Chicago. The tab for red tape ultimately is paid by the consumer, Lankford said.

The commission will consider public comments from a series of meetings in its recommendations to Congress and the President. The commission estimates that paperwork from government agencies averages 10 forms each year for each person in the U.S. The cost for processing the government forms is $15 billion, in addition to $1 billion for the forms, $1 billion for directions that accompany the forms and $1.7 billion for filing and storing the forms.

suburban living

COURAGEOUS PEOPLE, these immigrants who have set the United States as their destination. They come hoping to find freedom, equality, opportunity, a better life. Arriving at O'Hare Airport, they will in the weeks ahead face tremendous barriers, with language leading the list.

Huddled masses welcome in U.S. only if...

In a four-part series, staff writer Eleanor Rives takes an in-depth look at the immigration picture today — the shifting patterns of the past decade; the problems and adjustments of immigrants; the naturalization process — and visits a few of the immigrant families who have settled in the Northwest suburbs.

by ELEANOR RIVES

"Give me your tired, your poor. Your huddled masses . . .
Maybe in 1890.
Not today.

Perhaps in 1976 the inscription on the Statue of Liberty should read, "Give me your doctors, your medical technicians, your engineers. Don't give me your unskilled people — we have enough of our own."

Persons intending to become immigrants must first meet the labor certification requirement, according to David Vandersall, district director of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) in Chicago.

"IT MUST BE certified by the secretary of labor that the occupation the alien intends to pursue will not have an adverse effect on the wages and working conditions of similarly situated persons who are citizens or other lawful permanent residents of the United States," he explained.

"There are about 11 million unemployed persons in the U.S. today. That's about 8.6 per cent of the labor force," he continued.

"At present, no certifications are being issued to unskilled people, only to those in a class beyond the unemployed of our country — to doctors, technologists, professionals."

In a special report in The Christian Century last November, Father Silvano Tomasi, director of the Center for Migration Studies, Staten Island, N. Y., notes that historically, in times of recession, Americans have turned against immigrants, both legal and illegal.

WHAT IS AN immigrant, as defined by U.S. immigration laws? An immigrant is first an alien. An alien is any person not a citizen or national of the United States.

An immigrant, secondly is seeking permanent residence in the U.S. Before traveling to this country, however, he must be issued an immigrant visa by a U.S. consular office abroad.

That is not always easy.

To begin with, there is the numerical limitation system. From the Eastern hemisphere, no more than 170,000 immigrants per year are allowed to enter the United States, and no more than 20,000 from any one country. To stay within these limits, approval is based on a preference system.

FROM THE Western hemisphere, the number is limited to 120,000 per year, but on a first come-first served basis with no numerical limitation to any one country.

Not until the alien, with his proper documents, actually reaches the U.S. is the decision of his admissibility final. He may still be barred for reasons such as drug addiction, prostitution, contagious disease, past crimes, mental defects, etc. Once determined admissible, the immigrant is given his permanent visa, commonly called his "green card."

INS figures show that 394,861 immigrants were admitted to the United States in 1974.

ANOTHER 100,000 persons come in each year under the "immediate relatives" provision. With this classification, spouses, parents and children of U.S. citizens are allowed, without numerical limitation or labor certification, to legally enter the country for permanent residence.

For example, of the 32,857 immigrants from the Philippines in 1974, at least 12,857 were immediate relatives (since the country's quota was 20,000).

Under the Western hemisphere "immediate relatives" provision, according to Vandersall and the INS, pregnant Mexican women have been known to slip across the Rio Grande so their babies will have U.S. birth certificates. They then go back to Mexico, register with the American consulate, obtain visas and legally bring whole families back into this country.

WHAT OF THE 130,000 Vietnamese who fled to America?

They are refugees, not immigrants — yet. After two years, those who wish to may apply for permanent resident status and obtain their green card, if found admissible to the U.S. Their numbers will then show up in immigration figures.

Added to all these newcomers is a much larger number of people — those who enter the country illegally. Vandersall estimates that about one million illegal aliens enter the United States from all countries every year.

A Lesko Associates survey of Oct. 15, 1975, discloses that there are now about 8 million illegal aliens in the U.S. An estimated 5 million of that number are from Mexico.

IN THE CHICAGO area, according to Vandersall, there are between one-quarter and one-half million illegal aliens, with about 90 per cent of them from Mexico.

"Chicago is the second most popular destination for illegal aliens after Los Angeles," he said.

Mexicans also numerically head the list of legal immigrants, according to INS statistics for fiscal year 1974 (the most recent available). In that year, 71,586 Mexicans were admitted to this country as immigrants. "Because of this influx, the Western hemisphere is oversubscribed by about 2½ years," stated Vandersall.

ANOTHER IMMIGRATION pattern has become startlingly apparent in recent years. In 1965, a law abolished an old quota system that favored Northern European countries. Since then there has been a dramatic shift, a tremendous increase in the number of Asians entering the United States — 130,662 in 1974 — one-third of the year's total and six times more than in 1965.

Over-all in 1974, the greatest numbers of immigrants came from Mexico, the Philippines, Korea, Cuba and Taiwan, in that order. Of the 394,861 legal immigrants that year, 17,281 came to the Chicago area. Of this number, 4,574 were from Mexico; 2,101 from the Philippines; 1,053 from Greece; 1,048 from Korea; and 1,011 from India.

The total number of immigrants in 1974 was 57 per cent higher than the annual average of the 1950s. U.S. population figures reflect more than the birth rate. Today, one in every five new Americans is an immigrant.

ANTHONY WAYNE SMITH, president of the National Parks & Conservation Assn., is alarmed by this increase. In an editorial in the NP&C magazine last October, he said, "Immigration and emigration must be equalized if we are to control our population growth. The Gates of the Republic must not stand open, only ajar, if America is to live prudently within its means and yet enjoy the sustained abundance of the land."

But Tom Bethell, an editor of The Washington Monthly and a recent new citizen, writing in Newsweek last May, is delighted. In his article, "Becoming an American," he says, "Immigrants have in the past provided much of the vigor and spirit that made America a great country. Europe's poor made America rich. Now they are coming not just from Europe but all over the world. With this rich transfusion, I do hope and believe the characteristic American vitality will persist longer than might at present seem likely."

Behavior modification route to 'slim living'

by KAREN THOMPSON
Diets come and diets go. But for many people, losing weight and keeping that weight off is a never-ending battle.

In a 14-week Eat and Trim course beginning today at Northwest Suburban YMCA, instructor Norma Thompson takes a more conventional and logical approach. Class material emphasizes behavior modification for the compulsive eater.

"To succeed, the obese person must do three things," said Mrs. Thompson. "He or she must change their eating habits, learn to adjust to social pressure and meet their inner needs and frustrations."

The class begins each week with a weigh-in. "But we don't emphasize weight here," said Norma. "If a person does not feel she is making progress, we don't weigh her. There is no ridicule on the scales."

A BIT LIKE consciousness-raising, the women in the class tell their particular eating quirks and then analyze the reasons behind them. They take a good look at themselves. "Many of our eating habits have been built up from early childhood," said Norma. "We reward our children too often with food."

One woman in the class eats nothing until about mid-afternoon. Then she eats compulsively until bedtime. Another woman has a peanut butter craving. "I make sandwiches for the kids and then just dip in myself," she related. "And I don't even like peanut butter."

For this reason written exercises are practiced each week, alerting women to their habits and helping them readjust their eating patterns. Everything eaten throughout the day is written down, preferably before it is consumed. Yes, even that taste of homemade soup and those two nibbles of Junior's cookie.

Stimuli that trigger eating are also studied. Mrs. Thompson said many people eat when in a certain place — a chair, the car. One woman finds the bathtub her favorite eating place. Or, a time — while preparing dinner, after a nap or on special occasions. "The fewer food-related stimuli around, the easier it is to control eating habits," said Mrs. Thompson.

There are also stimuli that are harder to remove — adverse cues. Perhaps the baby is sick, you have had a fight with hubby, the weather is bad. "There are countless excuses for eating, but we must learn why we make these excuses," Norma said.

THE DIFFERENCE between a thin person and an overweight person is that a thin person eats when hungry and stops when full. An obese person, on the other hand, most often eats less at conventional times, eats at erratic intervals and can eat even when already stuffed," she said. "Hunger has little to do with eating for the obese person," she added.

Mrs. Thompson, a dietician, outlined three types of eaters — the binger, the nibbler and the hardy eater. "A binger is a person who shoots the works. He or she must learn what got the binge started, what keeps it going and why it can't be stopped," she explained. "Lack of awareness is usually the main problem for the binger."

She classes nibblers as people who don't realize how many small bites add up. "That's why we include those little licks of frosting or tastes of soup when we chart our day's food," she added.

Hardy eaters can't stop. "They say, I love food and go overboard to prove it. They don't eat daintily but instead shovel the food, most often not even enjoying the flavor," said Mrs. Thompson. "They must ask themselves who says eating is supposed to be fun? Food is eaten for sustenance of life, not fun."

According to Norma, the Eat and Trim program takes hard work and a desire to follow through. "It's like learning to play a musical instrument," she said.

Mrs. Thompson sums up most diet plans:

• Most obese persons will not stay in treatment or on a meal plan.

• Of those that do remain, most will not lose much weight.

• Of those who lose, most will regain, thus these people are addicted for life to diet groups.

"People want quick results measured in pounds," said Norma. "They gravitate toward do-it-yourself crash and fad diets which never work for them and often ruin their health."

"In our Eat and Trim classes we try to get people to solve their own inner conflicts and adjust to their environment. Since no diets are involved, we stress simply good nutritional eating in smaller quantities. We teach discipline, not diet."

"I like to call it slim living," she said. "I would like to think that after 14 weeks my students will not need me anymore. They will by then know the reasons for their eating and the methods for change," Mrs. Thompson said.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Depression and heart attacks

My husband had a mild myocardial infarction last summer. It took him two months to recover physically, but more like three months mentally. He had never been ill, and this really hit him like a ton of bricks. All a heart patient can do is sit around and worry for fear he will drop dead with the next breath, about his ability to do his job when he's allowed back to work, about money if he can't and watching his neighbor mow his lawn.

Tranquillizers are not the answer. I guess I am presenting you with a problem for which there is no answer.

You are touching on an area that is all too often ignored. You're right about what happens to a person when a heart attack occurs. Of course one can be thankful he survived because about half of the victims of heart attacks don't make it to the hospital in time for meaningful treatment.

I was on a program recently with Dr. Terrance Cavanaugh of the cardiac rehabilitation center in Toronto, Canada. He commented on this problem, noting that about half of the men in the exercise program did have a depression after a heart attack. Each man pretended that everything was great because he thought he was the only one who was having any worries.

That is typical of human beings. We tend to keep our mouths shut and suffer in silence because we think we are unique, when in fact most other people have similar difficulties and also think they are unique.

A lot can be done to dispel this feeling after a heart attack in many patients. It helps to get people back to normal living as soon as their condition permits. That means rehabilitation in many cases.

Many people after a heart attack can be trained to engage in vigorous physical activity. Dr. Cavanaugh's group runs in the Boston marathon. Many of these men do more physical activity than they were able to do before a heart attack.

I do not advise starting an exercise program on your own after a heart attack. We need a lot more public facilities though where people can be trained to exercise. We need people to train post heart attack patients to the level that they feel good and realize that they are just as capable or more so than they were before an attack.

This can't apply to everybody as some people do have severe limitations after immediate recovery because of the extent of heart damage, but all too often the person could be trained to have a full and physically active life with the right training and supervision.

The best I can do is to say that the opportunity is there for most people who really want to try. With the doctor's permission such people should start a regular walking program while eliminating any excess fat they might have. Then, if their condition permits as shown by evaluation by the doctor, many of these people can progress to slow, steady jogging or trotting and other activities that will build up their heart and lung capacity to surprising levels.

For more information on what to do after a heart attack send 50 cents for The Health Letter, Number 2-12, After the Heart Attack. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1651, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10018.

The home line

by Dorothy Ritz

Taking a chance with steak tartare

Dear Dorothy: Your strong opinion about eating raw or rare ground meat rang bells with me and I hope you'll permit a little more expounding by me. My son was at Cornell the time a number of his fellow students came down with the disease called toxoplasmosis. All of it was traced to the same place, where they ordered their hamburgers "rare." I hold that rare meat is dangerous at home, too. After all, the same grinder is often used for both beef and pork and I'd think everyone knows that pork has to be cooked fully done, to prevent trichinosis. I'm sure you agree. —James A. Boudreau

Of course I do. It's why I shudder so over steak tartare. It seems to have some kind of snobbish appeal. I say they're cracked.

Dear Dorothy: I've always had a problem cutting off the extra material when shortening a dress; my scissors wobbled from pin to pin. Watching a friend do the job, I saw how she used a ruler and marked the line with tailor's chalk. Made it a breeze to cut a straight line. Maybe others don't know this. —Lana Heinz

Dear Dorothy: In the cabinet where spices are kept, I paste a typewritten list of all the spices on hand and when purchased. When planning to try a new recipe I know exactly what spices are on hand or what may be needed. —Mrs. David R. Gallrein

Dear Dorothy: Odd question that's been bugging me: How come noodles are more yellow than macaroni? Aren't they both made of the same kind of dough? —Mrs. J.J. Hirsch

The dough is the same except for one difference — noodles must contain egg yolks or whole eggs.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Ask Andy

Ma Bell a miracle of technology

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Paul Tordoff, 11, of Coventry, R.I., for her question:

HOW DOES THE TELEPHONE COMPANY KEEP TRACK OF ALL THE PHONE NUMBERS?

Many of us take the telephone for granted because it is so readily available and easy to use. When we telephone someone nearby or long distance, it takes just a few seconds for a connection. This modern miracle of communication does not just happen. Thousands of people work hard to make telephone service as effective as they possibly can.

The telephone number you have now will probably be yours for quite a while unless you move or request a different number. Every month the mailman brings a bill for your telephone service, which includes a certain rate, charges for any toll or long-distance calls and possibly a telegram. Your phone number, which is also your account number, is "in service" and will not be issued to anyone else. The telephone company keeps superaccurate records on each number issued to avoid such a mistake.

Although the miraculous computer is used in some phone company business, the issuing of numbers is processed by hand. It is time consuming, but the many steps necessary involve several people before the transaction is complete. Usually numbers are issued in numerical order. Let's say you moved yesterday and were given the number 800-2119. If your best friend just happened to move in down the street yesterday also, his number could very well be 800-2120.

When a person moves out of the area, his phone number goes into a mechanical intercept file. This means that when someone dials that number, an operator intercepts the call and informs the caller of the number change. The number is taken out of service for a minimum of 30 days. If a business or industry moves, the number is held out of service for up to a year. At the end of these periods, the number is issued again.

Telephone companies continually serve the public in every way they can. One department specializes in forecasting the growth patterns of a community to make sure the phone company is ready for new families, schools and businesses. Telephones are now available in countless varieties and colors, including the faster-than-fast push-button models. And if anything goes wrong with your phone, a telephone repairman is quickly there to fix it, free of charge.

Merely looking at a telephone leads us to think of it as just a simple, lightweight and compact tool. Yet it is very complex, representing the highest achievements of many sciences and skills, including physics and mathematics, biology and metallurgy, electronics and ceramics.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of C.S. Lewis' "Chronicles of Narnia" to Kim-Chi Nguyen, 13, of Ottawa, Ont., Canada, for her question:

HOW LONG CAN A CAMEL GO WITHOUT WATER?

Pausing for a long cool drink at the water hole is not a laughing matter for the camel, for it may be his last drink for a long time. A camel can go as long as three months without taking in precious liquids, but he becomes thin and weak. This is because he has had to use up the stored fluids in his tissues. Camels are valuable animals, and usually their owners try not to push them to extremes of endurance.

Today, as well as for thousands of years in the past, camels are used to haul passengers and freight across burning deserts. Often, especially during the hot, dry summer, a working camel will need both food and water every few days. Although the camel can haul as much as a half-ton on his back, desert dwellers rely on this extraordinary animal for many other things besides carrying burdens. From his soft fleecy coat can be made blankets, robes and tents, and the milk provided by the female is rich in vitamins and minerals.

Medical group survey shows:

'50% of doctors would strike'

by United Press International

Two-thirds of the doctors interviewed in an American Medical Assn. survey said they believe doctors' strikes are sometimes justified and half said they would go on strike — or limit service — themselves.

The AMA released the survey results Sunday in the first issue of IMPACT, a new monthly supplement to the AMA newspaper which deals with socio-economic instead of scientific issues concerning doctors.

"This sample will give us a pretty good picture of what physicians are thinking," an AMA spokesman said.

HE SAID THE scientific sample included about 200 physicians of all age groups, medical specialties and geographical locations.

Doctors indicated they thought strikes were most justified to protest actions by state, local or federal governments which doctors consider detrimental to delivery of quality medical care.

A second major reason for doctors strikes, they said, is to publicize a problem like malpractice.

Fifty-five per cent of physicians said they would strike or participate in a job action, 34 per cent would balk at stopping or reducing services, and 11 per cent said they preferred not to answer.

YOUNGER PHYSICIANS showed stronger support for strikes or work stoppages than did their elder peers.

Some 63.9 per cent of doctors under 35 years of age said they believed strikes or job actions were justified to obtain certain objectives; 68.3 per cent in the 36-40 age group agreed as did 62.2 per cent in the 50-64 age group, and 57.1 per cent over the age of 65.

The spokesman said IMPACT would publish similar surveys each month because "doctors find they are spending much more time on activities related to basic care."

Special events part of Harper program

College and community programs at Harper College this spring will feature concerts by The Lettermen and pianist Fernando Laires, and a number of art exhibits and special events.

Pianist Fernando Laires will present a concert at 8 p.m. Tuesday. Admission is $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for students. Harper students and staff will be admitted free with I.D. cards.

The Lettermen, popular vocal trio, will present a concert in the college center lounge at 8 p.m. March 12. Public admission is $3.50 and Harper students and staff are admitted for $2.50.

AUTHOR TOM WOLFE, who wrote "K and L Kolorado Tangerine-Flake Streamline Baby," the "Pump House Gang" and "The Electric Kool-Aid Acid Test" will lecture at 8 p.m. March 23 in the college center lounge. Public admission is $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for students. Harper students and faculty will be admitted free with I.D.

An editor of the monthly humor magazine, National Lampoon, will lecture at noon on April 13. Admission is free.

In addition to these activities, the spring schedule includes a square dance and chuckwagon buffet March 20, a concert by the New England Ragtime Ensemble April 2, and an exhibit of early Chicago architecture April 5 through 30.

For more information or tickets contact the student activities office, Harper College, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine, 397-3000 ext. 342 and 243.

Pioneer Paper Stock is paying money for old newspapers.

We need paper for recycling mills, so we're paying to get it. Individuals, companies, municipalities — anyone who has old newspapers and can bring them in, can make money.

Just deliver your old newspapers to the Pioneer facility at 1750 W. Fullerton (just off Route 53) in Addison, or 900 N. Ogden Avenue in Chicago. You can drop off newspapers between 7:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m., Monday through Saturday. We'll weigh them and pay you on the spot — $1.25 per hundred pounds (about a 4' stack) or $25 per ton.

If you have a large load (8 tons or more), we'll provide trailers or bins and pick them up. For newspaper that we pick up, we pay 85¢ per hundred pounds or $17 per ton.

We are also paying for old corrugated containers, computer print-out paper and cards, and many other grades of wastepaper.

It's easy to make extra money from old newspapers — almost easier than throwing them away.

For further information, call 786-7141, 786-7146, or 786-4148.

Drama, debate in district swim finals

by BOB GALLAS
Swimming Editor

How can you set a record and still finish second?

That was just one of the questions answered over the weekend in the Arlington District Swimming meet, a meet touched with controversy and a bit of the bizarre.

There was the expected dominance of the eventual winner, St. Viator. But there were also some upsets and surprises in the meet.

Like Viator's fourth-seeded Chris Stewart coming out of nowhere to upset teammate and defending district champion Mark Rohl in the 100-yard freestyle. Stewart erased Rohl's old record of 50.100 seconds with a sparkling 49.940.

Or Viator's Mark Markwell coming in off a sickbed to clock his best time of the year in the backstroke, taking third with a 59.400.

But the biggest flap, one that touched off some arguments, came in the 50-yard freestyle, won by third-seeded Tom Cole of Prospect who knocked with 450 points to win the district title. Otherwise, the meet was all Viator although second place Arlington did manage to capture the breaststroke title courtesy of Mike Reessler's 1:05.717 clocking.

Cole's first in the 50-freestyle and Stahnke's first in the butterfly were the only other events not won by Viator or Hersey.

Viator coach John Fleck, at the meet between his duties of nursing his flu-stricken family, said there were some bright spots and disappointments in his team's performance.

Fleck said Mark Rohl will undergo blood tests today. Rohl qualified for the state meet in the 50- and 100-yard freestyle events, but his times were below par. Rohl took third in the 50-yard event with a time of 23.31 and second with a time of 50.878 in the 100-free, an event where he was defending district champ.

"There's something wrong, that's for sure," Fleck said of his premier freestyler. "He's going in for blood tests to find out what it is," Fleck said. Nevertheless, Viator qualified off the favorite, Rolling Meadows' Tom Stahnke. The finish touched off an often heated dispute, led by Meadows' coach Phil Pardon, who claimed Stahnke won.

Stahnke did finish ahead of Cole timewise, turning in a record-setting 22.970 second time. But the electronic timing device in Cole's lane malfunctioned, and the judges voted Cole the winner, saying he touched first. Cole's time by stopwatch was 23.0 seconds, about 0.1 of a second slower than Stahnke's stopwatch backup time.

Pardon was not cooled by the fact that both boys qualified for the state meet Friday, or by the fact that Stahnke came back in the next race to beat Cole in the butterfly with still another record time of 54.007 seconds.

A videotape of the race did not show the finish but showed Stahnke ahead a few feet from the finish.

"I don't want to take away anything from (Tom) Cole, but I know I won," Stahnke said after the meet. "I saw him (Cole) touch." There was never any doubt as to the winner as far as Prospect's coach, Paul Reef, was concerned. Reef was yelling right after the race that Cole won.

Rolling Meadows' tempers may have been fueled by an incident in the heat immediately prior to Stahnke's, where sophomore freestyler Jim Rowland was forced to run his heat over entirely due to a malfunction of the starter's gun. A bitterly disappointed Rowland sobbed openly after just missing state qualifying time the second time he swam the race.

The Lions from Viator put on an impressive team showing, qualifying for the state meet in 11 events, including both of its state-ranked relay teams.

The individual shows were put on by the regulars, like Hersey's machine-like freestyler Chris Tague, who also set two district records in winning the 200- and 500-yard freestyle events. Tague's teammate, Bill Cashmore, also set a new record in diving

THE DISTRICT side horse title at Hersey belonged to Prospect's Dave Scheible, shown here in an 8.50 routine. It was the Knights' only individual title as

Area claims nine berths in mat finals

by KEITH REINHARD
Wrestling Editor

With Buffalo Grove leading the way, nine area wrestlers scrapped and battled their way through rugged sectional action over the weekend to earn berths in the state showdown.

Coach Dennis Riccio and his Bison came within a whisker of capturing team laurels at the Barrington gathering Saturday and snagged three qualifying spots. Meanwhile Jim Thomas of Hoffman Estates was the only local entry to survive the grueling test at Naperville.

And at West Leyden it was St. Viator's Scott Zetek retaking his heavy-weight title to join with four other local grapplers earning tickets to the Champaign finale Feb. 27-28.

The qualifiers, in addition to Zetek and Thomas at 135 pounds were: Rich Wilhelm of Buffalo Grove at 126 pounds, Greg Thomson of Buffalo Grove at 132, Doug Browning of Buffalo Grove at 145, Jim Carlstrom of Rolling Meadows at 119, Doug McCarthy of Fremd at 126, Dan Lococo of Hersey at 132, and Ted Tyk of Rolling Meadows at 167.

Silhelm, McCarthy and Lococo, like Zetek, gained their places in the state finals via the championship route Saturday.

In terms of numbers it was a small group compared with previous years. Last winter a dozen area matmen fought their way through the sectionals to qualify for state competition and there were 13 representatives in 1974.

But judging from the opposition they had to overcome, the '76 crop of survivors from rugged district and sectional tests over the past two weekends figures to be just as competitive as groups from previous seasons.

Paced by Wilhelm, Buffalo Grove

led in the team rankings at Barrington all the way down to the last three bouts on the championship card. A surprise pin by Barrington over Libertyville at 167 finalized the title for the Broncos after only a week earlier finishing fourth in their district runoff behind the Bison, Highland Park and Glenbrook North.

Later, Grove 112-pound entry Tim Foley was knocked out of his qualifying berth in the 'wrestlebacks by a Parker entry that Foley had subdued in the districts. Reinjuring his shoulder while dropping an 8-3 verdict to Mark Marinaro of Rockford Boylan, Foley was then pinned by Parker Billy Clark in the first round.

"It was kind of a disappointing wind-up," Riccio offered. "Marinaro's tough and Clark wrestled well but Tim wasn't 100 per cent and the rest of the team all felt pretty bad for his sake. That second place team finish is nothing to be embarrassed about though and Tim played just as much a part in winning it as the others."

Wilhelm sailed to the 126-pound crown on 6-2, 7-2 and 8-3 verdicts and takes a 38-0 record into the state meet. He fell behind Jim Adams of Barrington 2-4 in the first round of the

Huskie gymnasts hit high mark; Knights advance

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Gymnastics Editor

The Hersey Huskies hit their high score of the season Saturday to win their own district and will advance, along with runnerup Prospect, to the Rolling Meadows Sectional Thursday.

The Huskies 146.21 score easily topped Prospect's 139.32 but the Knights' score was the best of the runnerup teams in the district which feed into the sectional.

The two Mid-Suburban League powerhouses shared the medal stand in the free ex event. Danny Muenz won the title for Hersey with an 8.70, the first of four titles for the Huskie senior, and Ray Peters and Bob Barut took third and fourth respectively.

Prospect's Doug Zahur took the second place medal at 8.50 and was joined by teammate Russ Klingaman, who grabbed fifth with a 7.80 marking.

"Our free ex was very strong," said Hersey head coach Don Von Ebers. "We had three good routines and the 24.90 we scored there was our high for the year."

The Hersey side horse team picked up two more medals, by Ed Weinberg and Muenz, but Prospect took a small bite out of the Huskies lead as Dave Scheible won the district title with an 8.50.

Fremd's Doug Smidl was second on the event and Arlington's Dave Eitemiller fourth.

Muenz overcame the lingering effects of a rib injury to nail the all-around title with an 8.06 average. He also had titles on free ex, P-Bars and shared the high bar championship with fellow Husky Rich Stange.

"Danny's still hurting," Von Ebers commented. "But his routines are set and he can get through them without too much trouble."

"But he knows he's a senior and this is his last year so nothing is going to hold him back."

Muenz hit his difficult dismount off the P-Bars for the first time in the competition and was rewarded with an 8.80 to win that title.

Hersey's Mike Caruso also took fourth on P-Bars. Hersey's other injured Husky, still rings specialist Vince Carrado, looked sharper but finished out of the running for a medal. He scored a 7.80.

"Vince has had the flu all week," Von Ebers said. "But he looked better. He was still too high on his cross but he held it better than before. The shoulder is coming around."

Arlington hit one of their best scores of the year as they took third with 130.21.

The Cardinals advanced medalists Dave Eitemiller (side horse), Mark Titre (high bar), Chris Smith (trampoline), Tom Staley (still rings) and Kyle Chamblee (still rings) to the Meadows Sectional.

Wheeling got a district title out of Dale Brunbraber. The Wildcat still rings specialist edged Arlington's Staley (8.55) to take the championship with an 8.45 score.

Mike Spencer of Wheeling was third on high bar (7.40).

Hersey took two medals on trampoline as Ray Peters won with an 8.45

Gym summary in scoreboard

and Bob Barut finished third at 8.05.

Prospect's Doug Zahur picked up another medal on the event as he placed fourth with a 7.60.

Prospect's other medalists included Glenn Wilke on still rings, Jim Tangney on P-Bars and Russ Klingaman on all-around.

Hersey, Prospect and Rolling Meadows (champions of the Hoffman Estates district) will battle again in the Sectional, Buffalo Grove, which hit an astounding 139.39 in winning their district, will also be on hand.

"We've got a good chance of winning again," Von Ebers said. "But it won't be any easier than the conference meet."

"We've gone through a lot of grief this year and making the top six (in the state) would be a real accomplishment."

Seals dump Hawks

California ripped the Chicago net for three goals in the first period and went on to issue the Black Hawks their second straight decisive defeat at the Stadium Sunday, 5-3.

Wayne Merrick accounted for two of the Golden Seal scores, following up Gary Sabourin's leadoff goal to open a 2-0 bulge for California. After Cliff Korall cut the lead in half, assisted by John Marx and Pit Martin, Kevin Ahern retaliated for the guests and Chicago trailed by two going into the second period.

Merrick scored to make it a 4-1 contest and Mike Christie hit an open net with three seconds to go in the game after J. P. Boredeau had struck for the Black Hawks early in the third period.

Chicago's most recent setback was a 10-1 bombardment by Pittsburgh.

Bucks bump Bulls, 115-112

Brian Winters' jump shot with 5:10 remaining put Milwaukee ahead for the first time and his two free throws with three seconds left gave the Bucks a 115-112 triumph over the Chicago Bulls Sunday.

The victory enabled the Bucks to take a half game lead over Detroit in the Midwest Division of the National Basketball Association while the Bulls dropped six games behind in last place.

The Bulls led 64-55 at the half and had a 94-88 lead after Mickey Johnson scored the opening basket of the final period. Jon McGlocklin, playing in his first game since Feb. 6, hit a jump shot and then Winters, Elmore Smith and Winters again hit jumpers to pull to a 94-94 tie.

The teams traded baskets until Winters' jump shot put the Bucks ahead. With three seconds remaining and the Bucks holding a one-point lead, Winters stole the ball from Leon Benbow and was fouled. He hit both free throws to clinch the game.

Winters, who scored 12 points in the final period, led Milwaukee with 27 points while Bob Dandridge had 25 and Smith 21. Bob Love had 30 and Johnson 25 for Chicago.

Superstars won by Rote method

Soccer star Kyle Rote Jr. of the Dallas Tornado withstood the challenges of football player Lynn Swann and water skier Wayne Grinditch Sunday to win his second Superstars championship in three years.

Rote, who placed in the top five in every event in which he competed Sunday, finished with 33 points and took home top money of $44,900. Swann, the Super Bowl hero for the world champion Pittsburgh Steelers, was second with 29 points, a half-point ahead of Grinditch. Bob Rigby, goalkeeper for the New York Cosmos, was fourth, and shotputter Brian Oldfield was fifth.

Rote, who won the Superstars competition in 1974, entered Sunday's final round in the lead and held onto it by finishing second in baseball hitting, fourth in the half-mile run and 100-yard dash and fifth in the bicycle race.

Celebrity superstar Robert Duvall finished sixth, followed by former Mr. Universe Lou Ferrigno. Philadelphia Phillies third baseman Mike Schmidt, former pro football player Tucker Frederickson and former basketball player Dave DeBusschere, now commissioner of the American Basketball Association, tied for eighth.

Irwin rallies to take LA Open

Besppectated Hale Irwin, the 1974 U.S. Open Champion, charged from three strokes off the pace to catch British Open titlist Tom Watson Sunday, winning the $37,000 Los Angeles Open first prize in a two-man battle to the wire.

Chipping in from 45 feet for an eagle three on the 506-yard opening hole, Irwin, 30, shot a three-under-par 68 on his closing round to beat Watson by two shots and post his sixth career tour victory and first of the year. He finished with a 72-hole total of 272, 12-under-par for a tournament record.

South Africa's Gary Player, making his 1976 tour debut, finished third at a seven-under 277, with a fourth-round 67 while Lanny Wadkins, showing he is fully recovered from a December, 1974, gall bladder and appendix operation, charged in with a 66 to tie Tom Shaw, who had a 69, for fourth place, both with 278 totals.

UCLA home streak ends at 98

UCLA's fantastic Pauley Pavilion winning streak has been ended at 98 games but Gene Bartow, the Bruins' first-year coach, says his team isn't entirely to blame.

"Oregon played a great game," Bartow said. "I don't think they're going to lose again this season."

"This victory wasn't unexpected," noted Oregon's Dick Harter. "We've played phenomenal basketball the last few weeks. We were clearly the better team tonight."

Using ball control and getting 16 points from forward Greg Ballard, the Webfoots sliced UCLA's lead in the Pacific-8 basketball race to one game with three to go by knocking off the Bruins 65-45 Saturday night.

"It was especially good to end the UCLA streak because it was their last game at home this season," Harter added.

It was only the Bruins' third loss in 11 years at Pauley. Both previous defeats were against University of Southern California. The Trojans won at Pauley in 1969 and 1970.

UCLA trailed 38-14 at halftime, hitting just six of 27 shots, and Bartow said, "I can't recall a game that I've coached, either in high school or college, in which any team of mine has gotten off to such a horrible start."

Exhausted Sheila Young in third

Sylvia Burka of Canada scored an upset victory Sunday to win the women's world speed skating championship over favorites Sheila Young of Detroit and Tatiana Averina of the Soviet Union in Norway.

Burka was victorious in the 1,500 meter event Saturday and placed fifth in the 500, third in the 1,000 and seventh in the 3,000 to give her a total of 184,840 points, enough for the overall title.

Despite winning the 1,000 meter event Sunday and the 500 meter on Saturday, Young only ended up in third place in the overall standings. Averina was second with 185,283 points while Young had 185,546 points.

Young had a solid lead coming into Sunday's contest, but halfway through the 3,000 meters race she was exhausted and barely managed to finish the race. She also placed third in last year's world championship.

Busy Sunday tennis slate

There was tennis, tennis everywhere Sunday: In Salisbury, Md. Ilie Nastase dethroned Jimmy Connors for the National Indoor Tennis Championship 6-2, 6-3, 7-6, snapping the American star's string of three straight titles in the $50,000 event.

In Detroit Chris Evert, playing nearly flawless tennis and using every shot in her game, ground out a precision-like 6-4, 6-2 victory over Rosie Casals to win the $15,000 first prize in the Virginia Slims Tournament. Meanwhile in Keauhou-Kona, Hawaii it was Bjorn Borg coming from behind to beat Australia's John Newcombe, 2-6, 7-5, 6-2, 6-2, in the most exciting match so far of the $320,000 World Championship Tennis Challenge Cup series.

Guillermo Vilas of Argentina justified his top ranking in the $80,000 St. Louis Tennis Classic by methodically defeating India's Vijay Amritraj 4-6, 6-0, 6-4 in the championship match. And in Rome top-seeded Arthur Ashe survived a second set collapse to beat Bob Lutz 6-2, 0-6, 6-3 in the All-American singles final of the $80,000 Lutz Cup World Championship Tennis Tournament.

St. Viator swims to district title

(Continued from preceding page) all their state contenders and with a healthy Rohl, could be a top six threat in this weekend's state swim meet which starts Friday.

Herald area teams dominated the 13-team field, capturing six of the top seven places. Over-all, area teams qualified swimmers and divers in 22 places in Friday's state meet, plus four relay teams that qualified from three schools.

Although many times in the meet were slow in comparison to other districts, a total of nine new district records were set in the 11-event meet.

In other districts involving Herald area teams, Maine West, Forest View and Elk Grove, finished fourth, sixth and seventh respectively in the Glenview District, won by Loyola.

The Warriors from Maine West qualified one swimmer for the state meet, plus its freestyle relay team. Schlachter took second in the 50-yard freestyle with a state qualifying time of 22.88 seconds. He also took a first in the 100-yard freestyle, charging from his seventeenth position to a first-place time of 49.92 seconds, a pool record. The Warriors free relay team qualified for the state meet also with a time of 3:25.29.

At the Northfield District at New Trier West, Wheeling placed seventh in the 12-team field, headed by New Trier East. Though the tough competition produced 49 entrants in the state meet, none were from Wheeling. The Wildcats' best effort was a seventh place finish in the 200-yard individual medley by Marty Geisler.

Mick earns Evans grant

Edward J. Mick, a senior at Fremd High School, has been accepted for financial assistance from the Evans Scholarship Foundation.

Ed is an honor caddy at Inverness Country Club, where he has worked for three years.

From campuses nationwide

—Kim Larocca, a 1975 graduate of Maine West High School and a freshman at Southern Illinois University, helped the Sakis' intramural swim team establish two national marks.

Larocca participated in the 100-yard freestyle relay which recorded a :53.1 clocking — tops in the nation. She also took part in the 100-yard medley relay which touched in 1:01.37 for a second-place rating in the nation.

—Deb and Sue Lynn of Forest View were reunited on the badminton courts of Carthage College in Kenosha, Wisc.

Deb, a sophomore at Carthage, was on the team last year and was joined this year by her sister Sue, a freshman. Sue is also on the volleyball team and is serving as the college's first woman's student athletic trainer.

—Damian Archbold, a junior at Luther College from Elk Grove, earned a varsity letter for the 1975 cross-country team.

—Clady Brodie, a 1973 graduate of Maine West, has been named the Most Valuable Player on Knox College's women's volleyball team for the 1975-76 season.

—Larry Friedrichs of Arlington Heights, a sophomore offensive guard on the Northern Arizona University football team, has been named the Most Valuable lineman for the past season. He did not miss a single offensive play his first two years at NAU.

—Mark Mara of Palatine and George Kaage of Wheeling both dialed 20 points as Knakakee College turned back Malcolm X 99-81 recently.

Demaret turns golf into a rainbow

Gene Sarazen may have contributed the sand wedge. Harry Vardon showed the grip. U.S. Steel perfected the stainless-steel shaft. Ben Hogan showed how to engineer a round of golf. Arnold Palmer showed how to charge it. Jack Nicklaus showed how to chart it.

But the man who has done the most for golf may be jaunty James Demaret, son of John O'Brien Demaret, a house painter from Houston. There should be a candle lit in front of Jimmy Demaret's picture in every pro shop in the country. And, if you don't think he has done the most for golf, check with Izod, Munsingwear, Foot-Joy, Lemmermeyer or even Hart, Schaffner or Marx.

Where do you think the most money is made in Golf U.S.A. (or even worldwide) in 1976 — clubs? Lessons? Balls? Golf courses?

It's made in clothes. A set of clubs might last a player a lifetime, certainly years. Golf courses are built today not because they are lucrative propositions but to sell the real estate surrounding them. But there isn't a man who plays golf who doesn't have a closetful of slacks, sweaters, lizard shoes, gaudy caps. Somewhere in the early 50s or late 40s, the emphasis in the pro golf shops shifted from bags, putters, balls, and clubs, to alpaca sweaters, vermilion slacks, silk shirts. The head pros became haberdashers. Fortunes were made in the garment explosion.

Jimmy Demaret is almost solely responsible. Before Demaret, golf was played in the funeral garb of clerics on holiday. Baggy old pants, converted street shoes, cloth caps, sometimes even ties and coats. Knickers made their presence, but they were, after all functional, not decorative. Nobody wore them to the cocktail parties at night.

Jimmy Demaret was a considerable golfer — three times a Masters winner, twice runnerup in the U.S. Open, winner of 50 tournaments, a Vardon Trophy and leading money-winner. But his wardrobe always overshadowed his winnings, and his appearance detracted from his aptitude.

He got the idea watching his father mix paints one day that golf didn't have to be a drab gray-and-black proposition. He went to a New York tailor and sketched what he wanted in fabric — daisy plaid, hah pastels shocking pink. The tailor protested, "But, Jimmy, those are ladies' clothes!"

Demaret persisted and paid for the clothing out of his own pocket. Slacks at $75 a pair would be a bargain today, but it was unparalleled extravagance in those days. Jimmy was one of the first to pioneer the apres-golf costume, paying $300 to $400 for sports coats at a time when you could have bought a block of Texas real estate for that.

It paid off in publicity. Not only for Jimmy, but for the entire clothing industry. Demaret decided to make his entire golf ensemble a matching style — gaily-colored golf bags, mink head-covers — and one day, he brought a swatch of cloth to the shoe company in Brockton and said, "I want a shoe with a plaid saddle to match this sample."

In the late 30s, Life magazine sent a crew to Demaret's 100-shoe, 200-slack, 50-sweater closet, and did a two-page layout on the peacock of golf. And the game has never been the same since.

Demaret contracted with a knitting mill in Los Angeles for a line of Jimmy Demaret golf shirts and sweaters. He never got an identifying insignia like the Lacoste alligator, or the golden bear, or the Palmer umbrella, and the royalties were slim compared to what they are today.

The war interrupted it, with mills turning out khaki ensembles, but the garment explosion pioneered by Demaret took place in earnest with the post-war period. The players came out in hip-hugging, custom-tailored slacks, alpaca sweaters and plaid or purple shoes — even the gloves had to match — and turned golf courses into Easter Parades, 18-hole fashion shows.

A golfer wouldn't dream today of showing up in the same raiment twice. Doug Sanders took over for Jimmy as the resident free-feathered fairway friend, but the color explosion was such that, in a short while, Doug hardly stood out from his playing partners. Today, clothing coordinators consult with the pros on TV garb because their sweaters are almost as important as their swings. They are not only contracted to play certain clubs, they are contracted to play certain clothes. Jack Nicklaus, who is color blind, has his clothiers lay out a daily tournament color scheme.

Demaret is probably the only male pro ever to play tournaments in shorts. The PGA tried to block him, but Jimmy began wearing them in a steamy tournament in Chicago one year and refused to obey the ban. "You can't tell a man what to wear," he told them. "You can change the bylaws of golf, but not the bylaws of the Constitution."

Demaret turned golf into a rainbow. He brought more money into the game than any individual in its history. Today at golf courses anywhere in the world — Japan, South Africa, Malaysia, Great Britain or South America — the players all look like Jimmy Demaret did 40 years ago. No one shows up in an old sweater, frayed suit pants, and tie tucked into his shirtfront to play golf any more, thanks to Jimmy.

Jimmy's coat of arms should be a rainbow, rampant with chardreuse and aquamarine and fuchsia alpacas — and with a pot of gold at the end of it, all right.

Bison, Cardinals join the fray

Two teams open with track wins

Buffalo Grove and Arlington opened the indoor track season with victories over the weekend to highlight a limited schedule for area teams.

Arlington knocked off Wheeling 78-41 on Saturday and Buffalo Grove turned back Carmel of Mundelein on Friday, 77-40. In other Saturday track action, Hoffman Estates beat Elk Grove and Homewood-Flossmoor in a triangular, Palatine finished third in a four-way meet at Maine East, and Hersey beat King in a dual.

Buffalo Grove's trackmen captured 11 first places, including two by hurdler Tom Theriault, who won the 50-yard high in :07.5 and the low in :07.6. Other top efforts by the Bison came from shotputter John MacIsaac (45-0 1/2), triple jumper Tom Wiedemann (30-1), and Ben Orecut, who ran the 50-yard dash in :05.7.

Wiedemann's triple-jump mark was a new Buffalo Grove indoor record.

Joe Schmidt won the mile, George Shih took first in the long jump (18-3), and Mark Hemmstreet was a winner in the 440-yard dash (:58.9).

Chuck Yorke and Mike Schell each won two events as Arlington debated successfully at Wheeling. Yorke ran the high hurdles in :07.5 and the low in :06.9 for his wins, and Schell captured the long jump (18-4 1/2) and the triple jump (30-1 1/2), each time edging Wheeling's Mark Larson.

The top performance by an Arlington athlete came when Cardinal high jumper Jim DeVuono reached 6-2. Other winners for the Cards were Dave Jausch in the pole vault, Tim Bauler in the 800, and Jeff Haslam in the 50 (:05.9). Arlington won all three relays.

Wheeling's Ben Sanchez won the two-mile (10:23.5) and the mile (4:54.6), Larson took first in the 440 (:58.6), and Ken Kent captured the shot put with a 42-10 1/2 toss.

Hoffman took 77 points to outdistance Elk Grove (47) and Homewood-Flossmoor (42) as Hawk senior Randy Krizanich won the 50 (:05.7) and the triple jump (30-4), and finished a close second to H-F's Ken Staggs in the 330-yard dash.

Steve Lind of Hoffman Estates took first in the 440 in :54.6 and was second to Staggs in the 600 in 1:27.1. Staggs, last year's IHSA runnerup in the 800 to Forest View's Steve Schellenberger, ran 1:26.7 in the 600 and :39.5 in the 330.

Hawk freshman shotputter Roger Sprague took a victory with a 43-5 effort and half-miler Charlie Squires was first in 2:07. Hoffman's Dave Paape won both the high jump and the pole vault.

Elk Grove hurdler Pat O'Brien was a double winner, taking the 50-yard high in :06.7 and the low in :06.4. O'Brien's teammate Joe Cullen won the two-mile in 10:13.

Palatine scored 51 points, well behind winning Maine East (92) and runnerup Rock Island (67). Niles North had 17.

The most impressive effort by the Pirates came in the pole vault where Bill Puskas netched his career best of 13-4 for Palatine's sole victory. Miller Kevin Koy ran second for the Pirates with a 4:40.8 and teammates Kirk Morris (:24.6) and Rich Falbo (38-7 1/2) were close seconds in the 220 and the triple jump.

Other second spots for Palatine came from Morris in the long jump (18-9), Tom Digan in the high jump, Falbo in the high hurdles (:06.7), and Rich Guthrie in the 800 (2:06.5). Sophomore Dave Throne ran a 2:06.6 to win the lower level 800, and Dave Horwath ran a 4:44 for third place in the varsity mile.

HEADING FOR the hoop is Arlington's Val Weidner (22) as Palatine's Darlene Gordon defends. Arlington won the basketball game, 52-47. Weidner scored 16.

Area athletes place in judo

Three area athletes placed in the city area YMCA Judo Championships held at Lawson YMCA in Chicago.

Taking trophies in their respective junior divisions were Danny Lindstrom, first place, and Clay Coonfield, second. Maurice Chung placed third in his weight division in the adult competition. The three, all from Arlington Heights, are members of the Northwest Suburban YMCA Judo Club.

Beginner's Judo class for youth at the Northwest Suburban YMCA starts again Saturday, March 6, at 9 a.m. The youth classes stress proper falling with the inclusion of four judo throws, mat techniques and self defense moves.

Adult classes for beginners will meet Tuesday starting March 2 at 7:30 p.m. Adult instruction also stresses proper falling and emphasizes self defense techniques. All classes are taught by Ernest Hauser, third-degree black belt.

Signup for new classes at the YMCA is in progress at this time.

Softball meeting

There will be a meeting of all league organizers and team managers who are involved in youth softball for boys and girls and interested in information for registering with the Amateur Softball Assn. for the 1976 season.

Information will be given on rules, information on tournaments, metro and national. Anyone interested in hosting a metro tournament in their area should bring the necessary information needed, such as number of diamond sites, lighted or unlighted, fence or unfenced, concessions available.

Ferris Reid, Metropolitan Chicago A.S.A. Commissioner of Softball, will be present.

Youngsters capture table tennis title

Two Arlington Heights youngsters came home with trophies at the recently concluded 24th Annual Arizona State Table Tennis Open.

Faen Yuen Liu captured the women's title with brother Faan Hoan taking the boys 15 and under and boys 17 and under championships. Faan Hoan also advanced to the semifinals in the men's division.

Water supply dropping fast in suburbs

by KURT BAER

The Northwest suburbs are running a race with time as they try to head off what could easily become the gravest regional crisis in their history — a lack of water.

Wells in the Northwest suburbs are going dry. Not today. Hopefully not tomorrow.

But since 1968, the suburbs have been pumping water out of the ground faster than nature can replace it.

This "mining" of underground water results in a 10 to 20 foot average drop in the water table every year.

EXPERTS DIFFER in opinions of how much longer the suburbs can depend on well water for their growing numbers of residents and industries. Some predict serious problems as early as 1980.

Officials have come to recognize the seriousness of their problem and are looking east to Lake Michigan for help.

Whether they get there in time could decide the future of the area.

"There is no more immediate or more difficult challenge facing the communities of Northwest Cook County than our fresh water supply," Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan told the Illinois Water Resource Commission during a recent hearing at the Arlington Park Hilton hotel.

"Water rationing is no longer on the distant horizon. The time has come when something has to be done."

COMMUNITIES HAVE debated to attack on three fronts: purchase water from the City of Chicago, develop an independent Lake Michigan water supply for the area, and adopt and enforce new conservation measures.

Homeowners and businessmen can expect the push for more water to cost them more money in higher water rates and special taxes.

One conservative cost estimate for constructing a water main from the suburbs to the northwest boundary of Chicago put the figure at $29 million.

Eight Northwest suburbs are currently aligned in the effort for Chicago water. Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Buffalo Grove — SHARE + 3 — each have contributed $5,000 to get the project off the ground.

SHARE + 3 is only four months old and has yet to formally approach Chicago for the water it wants.

PROOF THAT THE job is not easy can be found in the 19-year-old efforts of the Des Plaines, Arlington Heights,

Mount Prospect, Palatine Water Commission (DAMP).

Interstate lawsuits over the diversion of Lake Michigan water thwarted DAMP's request for a lake water allocation from 1959 to 1966.

In 1971, DAMP finally received state authority to divert 35.9 cubic feet per second of lake water for the suburbs, only to have the allocation overturned a year later because of a lawsuit filed by the Metropolitan Sanitary District and the North Shore Sanitary District.

DAMP again requested lake water at a July 1975 public hearing before the Illinois Department of Transportation. The state's decision is expected this summer.

"We've got governments in Northeast Illinois fighting each other with tax dollars, all to get the same thing — water," Arlington Heights Public Works Director Gene Willroth told the Illinois Water Resources Commission.

"If we don't get some overall regulation, water will be so damn expensive we won't be able to afford to drink it," he said.

Arlington Heights has suggested the formation of a regional water authority for Northeast Illinois.

WITHOUT DEALING with the obvious political problems in its proposal, village officials say a regional authority is the only sensible solution to the continued depletion of ground water and the allocation of lake water.

It is a suggestion endorsed by Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert.

"I think we all envision that someday there will be a regional water authority for the area," Teichert said at a recent SHARE + 3 meeting. "I would like to see an authority not controlled by the City of Chicago, but by all the users," he said.

A regional authority could correct the inequity created when one town spends millions of taxpayers dollars to get lake water and by so doing leaves more "lower-cost" water in the ground for other municipalities.

It also could prevent one village from "robbing" a neighboring community by drilling wells too close to its border.

A REGIONAL referee to oversee the use of water in Northeast Illinois may be a sensible theory. But one member of the Illinois Water Resources Commission voices a warning.

"Don't be too anxious to invest this authority in another bureaucracy," said Richard A. Pavia, acting commissioner of Chicago's department of (Continued on Page 3)

Dan faces new foes in a very old battle

It's tough enough being the Governor of Illinois these days without having a bunch of kids, who can't even vote, breathing down your neck.

Especially in an election year, when some half-wits who work for newspapers and television stations keep wanting all the juicy facts on your campaign contributors.

Those quibblers just don't seem to listen when you tell them to hang loose on campaign funding, that everything will be cool later.

Now, Daniel Walker has more serious problems. He's really stumbled over himself this time.

Governor Dan, "The Peepul's Man," has unknowingly rewritten an essential part of the educational process.

HE'S GONE and turned natural enemies into friends. Teachers and kids now like each other. Or so it seems.

That's bad. It could spell Walker's doom.

You must first understand that high school kids are constantly searching for their identity and being challenged to do something productive with their lives.

This causes all sorts of anguish. As a temporary cure, kids latch onto popular causes. This keeps them busy.

Some kids got their chance to lash back at one of society's many injustices last Friday morning when Governor Dan brought his traveling accountability session to Wheeling High School.

DAN FOUND a wonderfully responsive audience. Kids had the choice of attending his question-answer session, or they could spend the hour watching ants crawl across the cafeteria floor.

Most kids buckled up their political belts and decided they would not watch ants until later.

After all, you can watch ants struggle with hot dog crumbs any old time. It's the rare morning that a real live flesh and blood governor comes to the gymnasium.

So kids came face-to-face with Governor Dan.

To improve relations

City unit, hospital to meet tonight

A special committee appointed by Des Plaines Mayor Herbert H. Behrel will meet with Forest Hospital officials tonight in an attempt to improve city-hospital relations.

Relations between the hospital and city officials have been strained during the last few years because of a lawsuit and several zoning disputes.

Behrel appointed the committee on the recommendation of Ald. Alan Abrams, 8th. Behrel said the committee will discuss possible expansion of the hospital, 555 Wilson La., as well as "anything else the hospital wants to talk about."

Those appointed to the committee are Alderman Arthur Erbach, 5th, chairman, Robert Sullivan, 2nd, and Thomas Koplos, 1st.

The meeting will be in the cafeteria of the Des Plaines Civic Center 1420 Miner St., at 8 p.m.

Among the topics city and hospital officials are expected to discuss is a recent revision in the city's zoning ordinance that places Forest Hospital and other psychiatric hospitals into a more restrictive special-use category.

ALTHOUGH HOSPITAL officials have refused to comment publicly on the zoning revision, they reportedly are concerned that it will hamper the hospital's future expansion.

Michael Richardson, city director of planning and zoning, said the change will require hospital officials to come before the city for approval for any additions or structural changes. Before the revision, the hospital needed only a building permit if the changes conformed to the zoning.

Morris Squire, hospital president, three weeks ago asked the city council to defer action on the revision until city and hospital officials could meet. Aldermen, however, rejected the request and passed the ordinance.

Plan group weighs goals for Dist. 62

The Des Plaines Dist. 62 long-range planning committee will meet at 7:30 p.m. today to study the district's education programs.

The committee is setting goals for future education programs and is looking at financial resources that will be available.

The meeting will be at the administration center, 777 Algonquin Rd., Des Plaines.

The committee is working on a long-range plan to help the district prepare for future problems similar to those in neighboring districts, which face financial difficulties because of declining enrollment, cutbacks on state funding and inflation.

The district recently released enrollment projections for the next five years that show enrollment dropping about 30 per cent by the 1980-81 school year. Enrollment drops will range from 15 to 40 per cent at individual schools. The figures show a drop in enrollment from 5,882 students this year to 4,173 in the 1980-81 school year.

THE BOARD also directed the administration to cut about $700,000 from the tentative 1976-77 school year budget to help offset an anticipated deficit.

The district anticipates a $1.4 million deficit by July 1977, if current programs and staffing are maintained. The district also expects a deficit of about $698,000 at the end of this school year. A surplus of $2.8 million from last year's budget will prevent the district from going into deficit spending this year, and an over-all surplus of $2.1 million is expected at the end of this year.

The surplus at the end of this school year would prevent the district from going into deficit spending next year, but the surplus would be reduced to $662,000 if no budget cuts are made. The district also anticipates spending to exceed income during the next several years, so is considering possible budget cuts at this time.

Mary Kooyumjian, specialist in gifted education, will discuss "How Parents and Teachers Can Help to Develop Different Areas of Giftedness in Children" at 9:30 a.m. today in the Dunton Room of Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton St., Arlington Heights.

Ms. Kooyumjian is director of the graduate courses in gifted education in the department of special education at Northeastern Illinois University.

The meeting, open to the public, will also include a question and answer period. Ms. Kooyumjian will display materials such as books and games especially suited for gifted children.

Friends of Gifted Children, an organization that promotes programs and services for gifted and talented students, will sponsor this program.

Dem dinner sparks animosity

Norman-Chapman rift growing

by STEVE BROWN

The split between Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman Donald Norman and State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, has widened, with Norman now openly refusing to support Chapman for reelection.

Norman's comments came after the organization's annual dinner dance, which may have created more animosity than party solidarity among active Democrats in the area.

Norman did not mention Chapman's name during the evening Friday, which included speeches by a seemingly endless line of candidates, including Sec. of State Michael Howlett, Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan and State Senate Pres. Cecil Pardee, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for attorney general.

QUESTIONED AFTER the dinner about why the 12-year Democratic veteran's name did not arise during the evening, Norman said, "We support Joan Brennan."

Chapman was hospitalized with a broken ankle at Northwest Community Hospital and did not attend the dinner. Brennan, an Elk Grove Park District commissioner, also is seeking election to the Illinois House from the 3rd Legislative District as a Democrat. Voters traditionally have elected only one Democrat from the district.

Norman said the organization does not oppose anyone's candidacy, but when asked directly if he supported Chapman, Norman would say only "We support Joan Brennan" Norman offered no reason for his split with Chapman.

Chapman said Sunday Norman has not invited her to a Wheeling Township Democratic Organization function for more than a year.

Chapman said she was "not one to play on divisiveness. Donald Norman has never told me he was the least bit dissatisfied with my performance as a legislator. I hope that in November we can be united in electing Democratic candidates in all offices."

REPORTS OF the split between Chapman and Norman had circulated during the past months, but his comments at the dance are thought to be the first public occasion that he has failed to openly support the local lawmaker.

Two men track down suspect in assault here

Two citizens apprehended a 15-year-old Des Plaines youth last week shortly after one of them saw the youth assault a local woman at Oakton and Cora streets, police said.

The youth has been charged with aggravated battery in connection with the incident.

Police said the woman, in her 20s, was walking Thursday night when her attacker grabbed her, forced her down on to a sidewalk and pulled her clothes down. The attacker struck the woman on the nose.

A man was driving by, and he and his daughter witnessed the attack, police reported. The man drove on and hailed a truck driver, and together they searched the area for the attacker, authorities said.

When they drove near Mannheim Road and Prospect Avenue, they saw the attacker, and one detained him for police while the other went inside a store to summon police, authorities reported.

The woman was transported to Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, where she was treated for facial injuries.

Eugenia Chapman

Donald Norman

State Rep. Harold Katz, D-Glencoe, attended the dinner and was reportedly planning to offer an explanation why Chapman was not at the affair, but Norman did not allow him to speak.

Several reliable sources suggest

Norman is opposed to Chapman, because of vote to support Gov. Daniel Walker on the veto of $115 million in state school aid funds. But they also say Norman still is angered by Chapman and several other active Democratic women because he was not elected as a delegate to the Democrat's mini-convention in Kansas City in 1974.

While introducing several candidates, Norman also sparked a walkout by a handful of supporters of former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter.

While promoting his eligibility as a candidate for delegate to the Democratic National Convention pledged to U.S. Sen. Hubert Humphrey, Norman criticized Carter supporters for distributing Carter's literature without Norman's permission.

"IF THIS IS what Jimmy Carter has to do to be elected president, then it is pretty sneaky," Norman said.

Several Carter supporters, including Steven Maddock, of Elk Grove Township, a Carter delegate candidate walked out.

Parks nix post office purchase plan

The Des Plaines Park District has dropped plans to purchase the old Des Plaines Post Office, Graceland Avenue and Ellinwood Street.

The park board has been considering the building as a site for a new park district office. The board, however, decided against the purchase, based on a staff report.

Although the building was suitable for some park activities, the report said the building would not be acceptable for the district's offices. They said its $194,000 price tag, the high cost to renovate the building and lack of parking in the area are other disadvantages.

After reviewing the report, Park Board Pres. Edward Keane said to staff members, "What you guys are trying to tell us is that you wouldn't be interested in that building if they gave it to us for a buck. I guess we have no use for it."

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT has offered to sell the old post office to several government agencies after the new postal facility at Oakton Street and Executive Way is opened later this year.

Besides the park district, the city and Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission have expressed interest in buying the old post office.

The park district staff has suggested officials consider applying for a matching federal grant to build new offices at Rand Park, 2025 Miner St., and to construct a community center. The park district's offices formerly were at Rand Park.

City officials have expressed an interest in purchasing the park district's Pearson Street headquarters for Superblock, the first phase in the redevelopment of downtown Des Plaines. Kunkel said that park officials have not discussed the matter with the city in recent months.

Alternative Dist. 59 school loses in poll

More than 1,000 parents in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 said in a poll that they do not want an alternative school that would stress basic academics.

The poll showed, however, that 329 families favor the idea of creating an alternative school in the district, but only 430 said they would send their children to the school.

Updated figures may show variations on these numbers but the general trend has remained the same, said Leah Cummins, district public and community relations director, who did not have the most recent figures.

THE DISTRICT sent the questionnaire about the alternative school option to 7,000 families and received about 2,000 replies. In addition to the 430 families who said they would want their children enrolled in an alternative school, about 300 said they were undecided about sending their children to the school, although they would want that option available.

The board has discussed the possibility of offering an alternative school that would concentrate on the basics of reading, writing and arithmetic and offer limited extras, such as art, music and physical education. The school also might have a strict discipline policy and dress code.

The board will discuss the questionnaire's results and the possibility of offering an alternative school today at the administration center, 2123 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights. The meeting will begin immediately after a policy committee meeting that begins at 7:30 p.m.

District officials said the alternative school, if formed, would be offered to any students in kindergarten through eighth grade. It might be placed entirely in one school or placed in empty classrooms in several district schools.

Water supply dropping fast in suburbs

by KURT BAER

The Northwest suburbs are running a race with time as they try to head off what could easily become the gravest regional crisis in their history — a lack of water.

Wells in the Northwest suburbs are going dry. Not today. Hopefully not tomorrow.

But since 1968, the suburbs have been pumping water out of the ground faster than nature can replace it.

This "mining" of underground water results in a 10 to 20 foot average drop in the water table every year.

EXPERTS DIFFER in opinions of how much longer the suburbs can depend on well water for their growing numbers of residents and industries. Some predict serious problems as early as 1980.

Officials have come to recognize the seriousness of their problem and are looking east to Lake Michigan for help.

Whether they get there in time could decide the future of the area.

"There is no more immediate or more difficult challenge facing the communities of Northwest Cook County than our fresh water supply," Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan told the Illinois Water Resources Commission during a recent hearing at the Arlington Park Hilton hotel.

"Water rationing is no longer on the distant horizon. The time has come when something has to be done."

COMMUNITIES HAVE started to attack on three fronts: purchase water from the City of Chicago, develop an independent Lake Michigan water supply for the area, and adopt and enforce new conservation measures.

Homeowners and businessmen can expect the push for more water to cost them more money in higher water rates and special taxes.

One conservative cost estimate for constructing a water main from the suburbs to the northwest boundary of Chicago put the figure at $29 million.

Eight Northwest suburbs are currently aligned in the effort for Chicago water. Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Buffalo Grove — SHARE + 3 — each have contributed $5,000 to get the project off the ground.

SHARE + 3 is only four months old and has yet to formally approach Chicago for the water it wants.

PROOF THAT THE job is not easy can be found in the 19-year-old efforts of the Des Plaines, Arlington Heights,

Mount Prospect, Palatine Water Commission (DAMP).

Interstate lawsuits over the diversion of Lake Michigan water thwarted DAMP's request for a lake water allocation from 1959 to 1966.

In 1971, DAMP finally received state authority to divert 33.9 cubic feet per second of lake water for the suburbs, only to have the allocation overturned a year later because of a lawsuit filed by the Metropolitan Sanitary District and the North Shore Sanitary District.

DAMP again requested lake water at a July 1975 public hearing before the Illinois Department of Transportation. The state's decision is expected this summer.

"We've got governments in North-east Illinois fighting each other with tax dollars, all to get the same thing — water," Arlington Heights Public Works Director Gene Willroth told the Illinois Water Resources Commission.

"If we don't get some overall regulation, water will be so damn expensive we won't be able to afford to drink it," he said.

Arlington Heights has suggested the formation of a regional water authority for Northeast Illinois.

WITHOUT DEALING with the obvious political problems in its proposal, village officials say a regional authority is the only sensible solution to the continued depletion of ground water and the allocation of lake water.

It is a suggestion endorsed by Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert.

"I think we all envision that someday there will be a regional water authority for the area," Teichert said at a recent SHARE + 3 meeting. "I would like to see an authority not controlled by the City of Chicago, but by all the users," he said.

A regional authority could correct the inequity created when one town spends millions of taxpayers dollars to get lake water and by so doing leaves more "lower-cost" water in the ground for other municipalities.

It also could prevent one village from "robbing" a neighboring community by drilling wells too close to its border.

A REGIONAL referee to oversee the use of water in Northeast Illinois may be a sensible theory. But one member of the Illinois Water Resources Commission voices a warning.

Dan faces new foes in a very old battle

It's tough enough being the Governor of Illinois these days without having a bunch of kids, who can't even vote, breathing down your neck.

Especially in an election year, when some half-wits who work for newspapers and television stations keep wanting all the juicy facts on your campaign contributors.

Those gubblers just don't seem to listen when you tell them to hang loose on campaign funding, that everything will be cool later.

Now, Daniel Walker has more serious problems. He's really stumbled over himself this time.

Governor Dan, "The Peepul's Man," has unknowingly rewritten an essential part of the educational process.

HE'S GONE and turned natural enemies into friends. Teachers and kids now like each other. Or so it seems.

That's bad. It could spell Walker's doom.

You must first understand that high school kids are constantly searching for their identity and being challenged to do something productive with their lives.

This causes all sorts of anguish. As a temporary cure, kids latch onto popular causes. This keeps them busy.

Some kids got their chance to lash back at one of society's many injustices last Friday morning when Governor Dan brought his traveling accountability session to Wheeling High School.

DAN FOUND a wonderfully responsive audience. Kids had the choice of attending his question-answer session, or they could spend the hour watching ants crawl across the cafeteria floor.

Most kids buckled up their political belts and decided they would not watch ants until later.

After all, you can watch ants struggle with hot dog crumbs any old time. It's the rare morning that a real live flesh and blood governor comes to the gymnasium.

So kids came face-to-face with Governor Dan.

Flying airport owner downed in field

George Priester, owner-operator of Palwaukee Airport, Prospect Heights, Sunday was forced to land his single-engine aircraft in a Wheeling field northwest of the airport because of engine problems, police said.

Priester, his wife Veta and three other passengers were not injured, and the Cessna airplane suffered only minor damage to the nose landing gear.

Apparently undaunted by the emergency landing, Priester flew the passengers in another plane to Indianapolis later Sunday.

An airport spokesman said the Cessna aircraft lost power just after takeoff about 9:50 a.m. and that Priester set the plane down in the field just west of Dean Lane. Damage to the aircraft resulted from the frozen, bumpy ground, the spokesman said.

The slightly disabled plane was towed by truck along Hintz Road to the airport.

Ambulance tax vote date waits on village ruling

Wheeling Rural Fire Protection District officials will not set a date for an ambulance tax referendum until Wheeling decides whether to withdraw from the district.

James Ryan, fire district attorney, said Wheeling's future with the district has to be decided "before we can zero in on a date."

"The Wheeling people have to go back to their board and make some decision. Up to now, we've just been hearing from individuals," he said.

FOUR VILLAGE trustees met last week with fire district officials to discuss a proposal by Wheeling Trustee William Hein that the village disconnect from the district. Hein said disconnection would increase fire tax revenues to the village.

Ryan said fire district trustees dispute Hein's contention that fire district funds are distributed unequally between the Wheeling and Buffalo Grove fire departments. Hein said Wheeling provides 95 per cent of the service to unincorporated areas, yet receives only 60 per cent of tax revenues from the areas.

"There is some question about Mr.

Hein's figures. We're trying to ascertain where assessed valuations come from," Ryan said.

Marshall Theroux, Wheeling Township assessor, told district officials last week that Hein's figures "don't hold together." He said Hein's estimates for the assessed valuation of Wheeling and Buffalo Grove are incorrect.

FIRE DISTRICT officials said they will review the distribution of tax money within the district. James Winstead, fire district trustee, said, "Our attitude is that we have to provide fire protection for the entire area."

Fire district officials are seeking the ambulance tax because general revenue funds can only be used for firefighting costs. The ambulance tax would only be used for paramedic and ambulance programs.

Fire officials have said ambulance and paramedic service will have to be cut unless the tax is approved. The proposed tax would be a maximum 25 cents per $100 assessed valuation or up to $25 annually for homeowners whose property has an assessed valuation of $10,000.

CD emergency function to be reviewed tonight

The Wheeling Civil Defense program's role in emergencies will be reviewed tonight by the village's fire and police committee, which is studying the program's future.

Charles Kerr, chairman of the committee, said he hopes village trustees will reach a decision whether to continue the program. He said that in the past, the Civil Defense group has "operated more as an auxiliary police force" assisting police and firemen in emergency situations.

"This unit hasn't really come very close to meeting the requirements of a Civil Defense unit. We have to decide whether we want a Civil Defense unit, an auxiliary police force or nothing at all," he said.

THE MEETING will start at 7 p.m. in the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd. Kerr said a former Civil Defense official has said the Wheeling unit would need a full-time director if it is

School notes

Wheeling - Buffalo Grove

Prospect Heights Dist. 23

The MacArthur Junior High School jazz band received a first place superior rating recently at the Oak Lawn Jazz Festival for the second consecutive year.

John Sarallo was named All Star musician, performing solo on the tenor saxophone, and was the only student selected in this junior high school category.

Other soloists who performed at the festival were Louis Jones, piano; Mike Lane, trombone and Keith Brown, trumpet.

High School Dist. 214

Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa, has chosen four area students as presidential freshman scholars. The scholarship awards are presented each year to students who graduate in the top 10 per cent of their high school class.

Receiving the awards are Sheila Jean Erickson, David R. Lesch, and Richard Horndasch, all from Buffalo Grove High School, and Diane Sue Grindol, a senior at Rolling Meadows High School.

Wheeling High School will present its annual winter band concert Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the high school gymnasium, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd.

Tickets are priced at 50 cents for students and $1 for adults. The symphony band will perform "The Southerner March," "Folk Song Suite" and selections from "My Fair Lady."

The wind symphony is scheduled to perform "Four Scottish Dances," "Al Fresco," "Dedication Overture," "Mysterious Mountain" and "American Civil War Fantasy."

The featured soloist, junior, Trudy Hansen, will perform the "Night Soliloquy," by Kent Kennan.

Both bands are under the direction of Jack Williamson, assisted by James Kasprzyk.

Saint Viator High School

A representative from DeVry Institute visited St. Viator High School, 1213 Oakton St., Arlington Heights, recently to show a film and answer questions about careers and education in electronics and technology.

Junior and senior students attended the presentation as part of an on-going career education program at St. Viator.

In general...

An open meeting for the College of Lake County's CLC Summer-time Overseas program is scheduled for today from 8 to 9:30 p.m. in Room A225 on the school's campus, 19351 W. Washington St., Grayslake. This international travel and education program is sponsored by the Foreign Study League, a subsidiary of Reader's Digest.

For information contact Mario Maculan, 223-6601, ext. 276.

Mary Kooyumjian, specialist in gifted education, will discuss "How Parents and Teachers Can Help to Develop Different Areas of Giftedness in Children" at 9:30 a.m. today in the Dunton Room of Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton, Arlington Heights.

Ms. Kooyumjian is director of the graduate courses in gifted education in the department of special education at Northeastern Illinois University.

The meeting, open to the public, will also include a question and answer period. Ms. Kooyumjian will display materials such as books and games especially suited for gifted children.

Friends of Gifted Children, an organization whose purpose is to promote programs and services for gifted and talented students, will sponsor this program.

The College of Lake County women's program is offering an eight-session course called Personal Awareness at two locations this spring. The first will be held at Mundelein High School, Tuesday to April 13 on Tuesdays from 7 to 9:30 p.m. The second session will be held on the college's campus, 19351 W. Washington St., Grayslake, on Thursdays, 12:30 to 3 p.m. from March 4 to April 22.

Through small group discussion, participants are encouraged toward an awareness of themselves and others.

Individuals may register for the course at either location. For information contact Diana Mrotek, at the college, 223-6601, ext. 352.

"I've Got To Get Organized," a workshop on how time and money can be utilized meaningfully is being offered by the College of Lake County women's program.

The workshop is available at three locations: Mundelein High School Wednesday and March 3 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.; Waukegan Library, March 16 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.; Waukegan Library, March 16 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.; and on the college campus, 19351 W. Washington, Grayslake, April 28 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

For information and registration contact Diana Mrotek, 223-6601, ext. 352.

The College of Lake County announces the opening of the non-credit course, jazz band, for people with some experience who want to play with the college's band.

Practice is held either Thursdays, 3:15 to 4:45 p.m. or Saturdays, 3:30 to 5 p.m. in Room 504, on the campus, 19351 W. Washington St., Grayslake. Persons may participate in only one practice per week. An audition is necessary before registering. Chuck Banks, jazz band director, should be called for an appointment at 223-6601, ext. 461. Fee for the course is $7.

Dem dinner sparks animosity

Norman-Chapman rift growing

by STEVE BROWN

The split between Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman Donald Norman and State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, has widened, with Norman now openly refusing to support Chapman for reelection.

Norman's comments came after the organization's annual dinner dance, which may have created more animosity than party solidarity among active Democrats in the area.

Norman did not mention Chapman's name during the evening Friday, which included speeches by a seemingly endless line of candidates, including Sec. of State Michael Howlett, Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan and State Senate Pres. Cecil Partee, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for attorney general.

QUESTIONED AFTER the dinner about why the 12-year Democratic veteran's name did not arise during the evening, Norman said, "We support Joan Brennan."

Chapman was hospitalized with a broken ankle at Northwest Community Hospital and did not attend the dinner. Brennan, an Elk Grove Park District commissioner, also is seeking election to the Illinois House from the 3rd Legislative District as a Democrat. Voters traditionally have elected only one Democrat from the district.

Norman said the organization does not oppose anyone's candidacy, but when asked directly if he supported Chapman, Norman would say only "We support Joan Brennan." Norman offered no reason for his split with Chapman.

DAMP again requested lake water at a July 1975 public hearing before the Illinois Department of Transportation. The state's decision is expected this summer.

"We've got governments in Northeast Illinois fighting each other with tax dollars, all to get the same thing — water," Arlington Heights Public Works Director Gene Wilroth told the Illinois Water Resources Commission.

"If we don't get some overall regulation, water will be so damn expensive we won't be able to afford to drink it," he said.

Arlington Heights has suggested the formation of a regional water authority for Northeast Illinois.

WITHOUT DEALING with the obvious political problems in its proposal, village officials say a regional authority is the only sensible solution to the continued depletion of ground water and the allocation of lake water.

It is a suggestion endorsed by Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert.

"I think we all envision that someday there will be a regional water authority for the area," Teichert said at a recent SHARE + 3 meeting. "I would like to see an authority not controlled by the City of Chicago, but by all the users," he said.

A regional authority could correct the inequity created when one town spends millions of taxpayers dollars to get lake water and by so doing leaves more "lower-cost" water in the ground for other municipalities.

It also could prevent one village from "robbing" a neighboring community by drilling wells too close to its border.

A REGIONAL referee to oversee the use of water in Northeast Illinois may be a sensible theory. But one member of the Illinois Water Resources Commission voices a warning.

"Don't be too anxious to invest this authority in another bureaucracy," said Richard A. Pavia, acting commissioner of Chicago's department of (Continued on Page 8)

Dan faces new foes in a very old battle

It's tough enough being the Governor of Illinois these days without having a bunch of kids, who can't even vote, breathing down your neck.

Especially in an election year, when some half-wits who work for newspapers and television stations keep wanting all the juicy facts on your campaign contributors.

Those quibblers just don't seem to listen when you tell them to hang loose on campaign funding, that everything will be cool later.

Now, Daniel Walker has more serious problems. He's really stumbled over himself this time.

Governor Dan, "The Peepul's Man," has unknowingly rewritten an essential part of the educational process.

HE'S GONE and turned natural enemies into friends. Teachers and kids now like each other. Or so it seems.

That's bad. It could spell Walker's doom.

You must first understand that high school kids are constantly searching for their identity and being challenged to do something productive with their lives.

This causes all sorts of anguish. As a temporary cure, kids latch onto popular causes. This keeps them busy.

Some kids got their chance to lash back at one of society's many injustices last Friday morning when Governor Dan brought his traveling accountability session to Wheeling High School.

DAN FOUND a wonderfully responsive audience. Kids had the choice of attending his question-answer session, or they could spend the hour watching ants crawl across the cafeteria floor.

Most kids buckled up their political belts and decided they would not watch ants until later.

After all, you can watch ants struggle with hot dog crumbs any old time. It's the rare morning that a real live flesh and blood governor comes to the gymnasium.

So kids came face-to-face with Governor Dan.

100% increase under consideration

Business license hike topic of village meet

A proposed nearly 100 per cent increase in business license fees for Buffalo Grove merchants will be discussed tonight by the village board.

The hike is being proposed because current fees, established in 1969, do not cover the cost of annual inspections, said Village Clerk Verna Clayton.

The village now collects fees from 100 businesses, Mrs. Clayton said. The biggest increases will come for the 15 food establishments because they require more inspections than the 38 service and 47 retail stores, she said. The proposed fees range from $35 to $150 for food establishments, $30 to $110 for service stores and $20 to $90 for retail stores.

The fee request will be discussed at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

THE PRESENT fee structure produces approximately $4,000 per year and the proposed fee would generate approximately $7,000, Mrs. Clayton said.

Based on a report prepared by Village Engineer Arnold Seaberg, the new rates will only cover the cost of village inspections, she said.

"The new structure is the minimum amount needed to cover costs," she said. "The village board might raise them, but my estimates are just covering the cost of the inspections."

The Buffalo Grove Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors is "emphatically against an increase of the size they are proposing," said Jackie Brinn, chamber president.

"WE ARE AWARE of their needs as far as an increase is concerned but we feel to double or more than double the fees would be a detriment to new businesses coming into the community."

A business in Buffalo Grove would pay $60 in sign inspection and license fees for the same thing that would only cost $50 in Arlington Heights, she said.

$20 hike in paramedic ambulance fees urged

Users of Buffalo Grove's paramedic program may pay $20 per call more for ambulance service under a proposal by Fire Chief Wayne Winter.

Winter is asking for the $50 ambulance fee because "We have to do something — the money just isn't covering the cost of the program." If the proposal is passed at a March 2 meeting of the fire department committee, the new rate would go into effect immediately, Winter said.

Winter said the current fee of $30 for each call only raised $11,000 last year, while the budget was $39,000. He said donations and an annual fund drive helped ease the financial situation, "but we're still carrying over debts into the next year," he said.

"Every year, we're getting further "Arlington Heights has more to offer in the way of transportation with the train and cab service and other services, it's just a more established community. We are all pioneers in Buffalo Grove but we are hoping to help it grow into a stronger community. The proposed license fees will force the small businessmen out," Ms. Brinn said.

in the hole with ambulance service. We had to take a hard look at what it costs us and decided we have to charge at that rate," he said.

WINTER SAID the financial bind became worse because approximately 40 per cent of the service's 600 users never pay their fees, which he said usually were covered by health insurance.

"In the past, we weren't pushing people to pay, but that's going to stop," Winter said. "Nothing is free, and people are going to have to start paying their own way."

Even if the Wheeling Rural Fire Protection District agrees to go to a referendum to pass an ambulance tax, the money wouldn't be available until next year, Winter said.

School notes

Wheeling - Buffalo Grove

Prospect Heights Dist. 23

The MacArthur Junior High School jazz band received a first place superior rating recently at the Oak Lawn Jazz Festival for the second consecutive year.

John Sarallo was named All Star Musician, performing solo on the tenor saxophone, and was the only student selected in this junior high school category.

Other soloists who performed at the festival were Lois Jones, piano; Mike Luce, trombone and Keith Brown, trumpet.

High School Dist. 214

Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa, has chosen four area students as presidential freshman scholars. The scholarship awards are presented each year to students who graduate in the top 10 per cent of their high school class.

Receiving the awards are Sheila Jean Erickson, David R. Lesch, and Richard Horndasch, all from Buffalo Grove High School, and Diane Sue Grindol, a senior at Rolling Meadows High School.

Wheeling High School will present its annual winter band concert Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the high school gymnasium, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd.

Tickets are priced at 50 cents for students and $1 for adults.

The symphony band will perform "The Southerner March," "Folk Song Suite" and selections from "My Fair Lady."

The wind symphony is scheduled to perform "Four Scottish Dances," "Al Fresco," "Dedication Overture," "Mysterious Mountain" and "American Civil War Fantasy."

The featured soloist, junior, Trudy Hansen, will perform the "Night Soliloquy," by Kent Kennan.

Both bands are under the direction of Jack Williamson, assisted by James Kasprzyk.

Saint Viator High School

A representative from DeVry Institute visited St. Viator High School, 1213 Oakton St., Arlington Heights, recently to show a film and answer questions about careers and education in electronics and technology.

Junior and senior students attended the presentation as part of an on-going career education program at St. Viator.

In general...

An open meeting for the College of Lake County's CLC Summer-time Overseas program is scheduled for today from 8 to 9:30 p.m. in Room A225 on the school's campus, 19351 W. Washington St., Grayslake. This international travel and education program is sponsored by the Foreign Study League, a subsidiary of Reader's Digest.

For information contact Mario Maculan, 223-6601, ext. 278.

Mary Kooyumjian, specialist in gifted education, will discuss "How Parents and Teachers Can Help to Develop Different Areas of Giftedness in Children" at 9:30 a.m. today in the Dunton Room of Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton, Arlington Heights.

Ms. Kooyumjian is director of the graduate courses in gifted education in the department of special education at Northeastern Illinois University.

The meeting, open to the public, will also include a question and answer period. Ms. Kooyumjian will display materials such as books and games especially suited for gifted children.

Friends of Gifted Children, an organization whose purpose is to promote programs and services for gifted and talented students, will sponsor this program.

The College of Lake County women's program is offering an eight-session course called Personal Awareness at two locations this spring. The first will be held at Mundelein High School, Tuesday to April 13 on Tuesdays from 7 to 9:30 p.m. The second session will be held on the college's campus, 19351 W. Washington St., Grayslake, on Thursdays, 12:30 to 3 p.m. from March 4 to April 22.

Through small group discussion, participants are encouraged toward an awareness of themselves and others.

Individuals may register for the course at either location. For information contact Diana Mrotek, at the college, 223-6601, ext. 352.

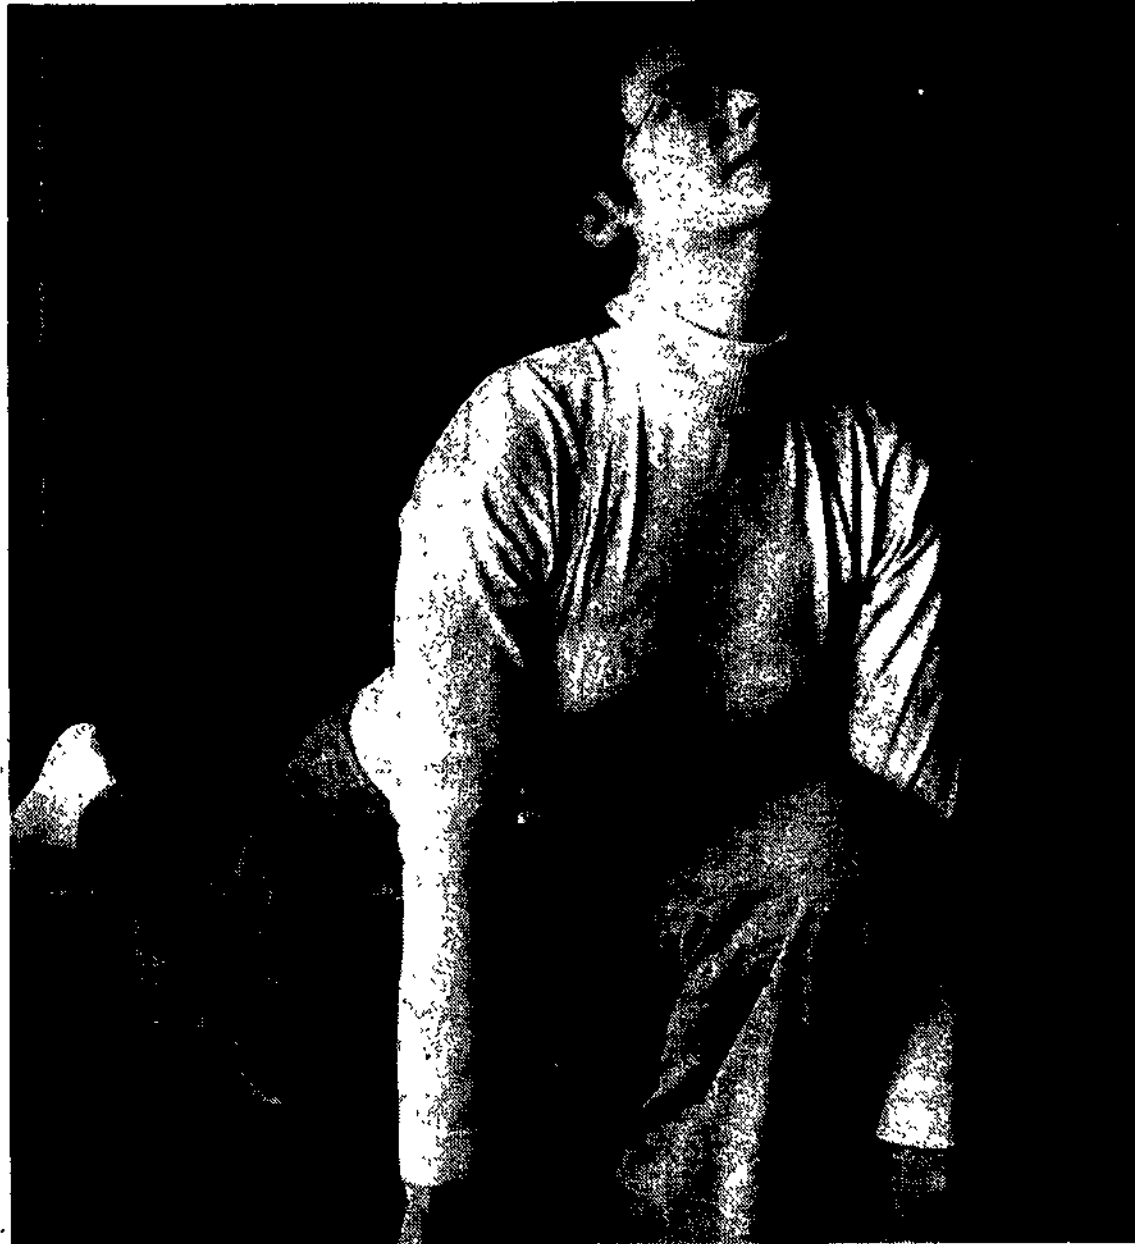

"I've Got To Get Organized," a workshop on how time and money can be utilized meaningfully is being offered by the College of Lake County women's program.

The workshop is available at three locations: Mundelein High School Wednesday and March 3 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.; Waukegan Library, March 16 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.; Waukegan Library, March 18 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.; and on the college campus, 19351 W. Washington, Grayslake, April 28 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

For information and registration contact Diana Mrotek, 223-6601, ext. 352.

The College of Lake County announces the opening of the non-credit course, jazz band, for people with some experience who want to play with the college's band.

Practice is held either Thursdays, 3:15 to 4:45 p.m. or Saturdays, 3:30 to 5 p.m. in Room 504, on the campus, 19351 W. Washington St., Grayslake. Persons may participate in only one practice per week. An audition is necessary before registering. Chuck Banks, jazz band director, should be called for an appointment at 223-6601, ext. 461. Fee for the course is $7.

BENDING TO ASSUME basic yoga positions is not as easy as Laura Stanley of Wheeling makes it look. She and other members of the Wheeling Park District class limber up each week.

Dem dinner sparks animosity

Norman-Chapman rift growing

by STEVE BROWN

The split between Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman Donald Norman and State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, has widened, with Norman now openly refusing to support Chapman for reelection.

Norman's comments came after the organization's annual dinner dance, which may have created more animosity than party solidarity among active Democrats in the area.

Norman did not mention Chapman's name during the evening Friday, which included speeches by a seemingly endless line of candidates, including Sec. of State Michael Howlett, Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan and State Senate Pres. Cecil Pardee, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for attorney general.

QUESTIONED AFTER the dinner about why the 12-year Democratic veteran's name did not arise during the evening, Norman said, "We support Joan Brennan."

Chapman was hospitalized with a broken ankle at Northwest Community Hospital and did not attend the dinner. Brennan, an Elk Grove Park District commissioner, also is seeking election to the Illinois House from the 3rd Legislative District as a Democrat. Voters traditionally have elected only one Democrat from the district.

Norman said the organization does not oppose anyone's candidacy, but when asked directly if he supported Chapman, Norman would say only "We support Joan Brennan" Norman offered no reason for his split with Chapman.

Chapman said Sunday Norman has not invited her to a Wheeling Township Democratic Organization function for more than a year.

"It would be nice to know if this is a stand of the committeeman or of the organization. If it is the stand of the organization, I wonder when they decided to do it."

Eugenia Chapman

Chapman said she was "not one to play on deviousness. Donald Norman has never told me he was the least bit dissatisfied with my performance as a legislator. I hope that in November we can be united in electing Democratic candidates in all offices."

REPORTS OF the split between Chapman and Norman had circulated during the past months, but his comments at the dance are thought to be the first public occasion that he has failed to openly support the local lawmaker.

State Rep. Harold Katz, D-Glencoe, attended the dinner and was reportedly planning to offer an explanation why Chapman was not at the affair, but Norman did not allow him to speak.

Several reliable sources suggest Norman is opposed to Chapman, because of vote to support Gov. Daniel Walker on the veto of $115 million in state school aid funds. But they also say Norman still is angered by Chapman and several other active Democratic women because he was not elected as a delegate to the Democrat's mini-convention in Kansas City in 1974.

While introducing several candidates, Norman also sparked a walkout by a handful of supporters of former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter.

While promoting his eligibility as a candidate for delegate to the Democratic National Convention pledged to U.S. Sen. Hubert Humphrey, Norman criticized Carter supporters for distributing Carter's literature without Norman's permission.

"IF THIS IS what Jimmy Carter has to do to be elected president, then it is pretty sneaky," Norman said.

Several Carter supporters, including Steven Maddock, of Elk Grove Township, a Carter delegate candidate walked out.

Later Maddock's mother, Rene Maddock, the Elk Grove Township Democratic Committeewoman, said "This is just stupid. I thought this was supposed to be a Democratic organization."

State Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park, the Democratic State Central Committeeman, said he thought Norman was just "uptight" over the campaign for delegate election. Pierce also is a Carter delegate candidate.

Water supply dropping fast in suburbs

by KURT BAER

The Northwest suburbs are running a race with time as they try to head off what could easily become the gravest regional crisis in their history — a lack of water.

Wells in the Northwest suburbs are going dry. Not today. Hopefully not tomorrow.

But since 1958, the suburbs have been pumping water out of the ground faster than nature can replace it.

This "mining" of underground water results in a 10 to 20 foot average drop in the water table every year.

EXPERTS DIFFER in opinions of how much longer the suburbs can depend on well water for their growing numbers of residents and industries. Some predict serious problems as early as 1980.

Officials have come to recognize the seriousness of their problem and are looking east to Lake Michigan for help.

Whether they get there in time could decide the future of the area.

"There is no more immediate or more difficult challenge facing the communities of Northwest Cook County than our fresh water supply," Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan told the Illinois Water Resources Commission during a recent hearing at the Arlington Park Hilton hotel.

"Water rationing is no longer on the distant horizon. The time has come when something has to be done."

COMMUNITIES HAVE started to attack on three fronts: purchase water from the City of Chicago, develop an independent Lake Michigan water supply for the area, and adopt and enforce new conservation measures. Homeowners and businessmen can expect the push for more water to cost them more money in higher water rates and special taxes.

One conservative cost estimate for constructing a water main from the suburbs to the northwest boundary of Chicago put the figure at $29 million.

Eight Northwest suburbs are currently aligned in the effort for Chicago water. Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Buffalo Grove — SHARE + 3 — each have contributed $5,000 to get the project off the ground.

SHARE + 3 is only four months old and has yet to formally approach Chicago for the water it wants.

PROOF THAT THE job is not easy can be found in the 19-year-old efforts of the Des Plaines, Arlington Heights,

Mount Prospect, Palatine Water Commission (DAMP).

Interstate lawsuits over the diversion of Lake Michigan water thwarted DAMP's request for a lake water allocation from 1959 to 1966.

In 1971, DAMP finally received state authority to divert 35.9 cubic feet per second of lake water for the suburbs, only to have the allocation overturned a year later because of a lawsuit filed by the Metropolitan Sanitary District and the North Shore Sanitary District.

DAMP again requested lake water at a July 1975 public hearing before the Illinois Department of Transportation. The state's decision is expected this summer.

"We've got governments in Northeast Illinois fighting each other with tax dollars, all to get the same thing — water," Arlington Heights Public Works Director Gene Willroth told the Illinois Water Resources Commission.

"If we don't get some overall regulation, water will be so damn expensive we won't be able to afford to drink it," he said.

Arlington Heights has suggested the formation of a regional water authority for Northeast Illinois.

MAN'S BEST FRIEND is a duck for Louis Horton. Horton, a teacher at Grove Junior High School, Elk Grove Village, has been a water fowl enthusiast since he was a youngster. He shares his interest in ducks and geese with students at school by bringing in some of his prized possessions for them to see.

'Bird man' of Grove School

Teacher an expert on fowl life

by JUDY JOBBITT

Louis Horton is for the birds... and the ducks and geese and anything else that flies.

The social studies teacher at Grove Junior High School in Elk Grove Village is known as the "bird man" to his students and fellow teachers.

He's the one they turn to with questions about the fowl life outside the school window.

And rightly so, because Horton has been a water fowl enthusiast since his mother bought him two ducklings when he was a child. Today he raises about 100 ducks and geese at his home in Wheaton and shows them at state contests.

HE SAYS HIS hobby appears to be unusual for a teacher who has grown up in the suburbs, but "water fowl enthusiasts come from all walks of life," including doctors, lawyers and professors. "Ironically not many bird raisers are farmers," he said.

He raises ducks and geese for breeding as well as to show them at contests. He usually breeds about five varieties of birds each year that have ranged from call birds to peacocks to white-crested ducks.

Satisfaction comes from matching the right birds to come up with

"ideal" for the breed, he said.

"Like any other animal, there is an ideal for ducks and geese. It's the same idea as dogs or cats," he said. "In a way, breeding to get the ideal is an art."

He said he knows the outcome of his breeding almost immediately. "At hatch you know if it's got the quality or it doesn't. From then on I just need (Continued on Page 5)

Alternative school not favored: poll

More than 1,000 parents in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 said in a poll that they do not want an alternative school that would stress basic academics.

The poll showed, however, that 829 families favor the idea of creating an alternative school in the district, but only 430 said they would send their children to the school.

Updated figures may show variations on these numbers but the general trend has remained the same, said Leah Cummins, district public and community relations director, who did not have the most recent figures.

THE DISTRICT sent the questionnaire about the alternative school option to 7,000 families and received about 2,000 replies. In addition to the 430 families who said they would want their children enrolled in an alternative school, about 300 said they were undecided about sending their children to the school, although they would want that option available.

The board has discussed the possibility of offering an alternative school that would concentrate on the basics of reading, writing and arithmetic and offer limited extras, such as art, music and physical education. The school also might have a strict discipline policy and dress code.

The board will discuss the questionnaire's results and the possibility of offering an alternative school today at the administration center, 2123 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights. The meeting will begin immediately after a policy committee meeting that begins at 7:30 p.m.

District officials said the alternative school, if formed, would be offered to any students in kindergarten through eighth grade. It might be placed entirely in one school or placed in empty classrooms in several district schools.

Mary Kooyumjian, specialist in gifted education, will discuss "How Parents and Teachers Can Help to Develop Different Areas of Giftedness in Children" at 9:30 a.m. today in the Dunton Room of Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton St., Arlington Heights.

Ms. Kooyumjian is director of the graduate courses in gifted education in the department of special education at Northeastern Illinois University.

The meeting, open to the public, will also include a question and answer period. Ms. Kooyumjian will display materials such as books and games especially suited for gifted children.

Friends of Gifted Children, an organization that promotes programs and services for gifted and talented students, will sponsor this program.

Dem dinner sparks animosity

Norman-Chapman rift growing

by STEVE BROWN

The split between Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman Donald Norman and State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, has widened, with Norman now openly refusing to support Chapman for reelection.

Norman's comments came after the organization's annual dinner dance, which may have created more animosity than party solidarity among active Democrats in the area.

Norman did not mention Chapman's name during the evening Friday, which included speeches by a seemingly endless line of candidates, including Sec. of State Michael Howlett, Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan and State Senate Pres. Cecil Partee, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for attorney general.

QUESTIONED AFTER the dinner about why the 12-year Democratic veteran's name did not arise during the evening, Norman said, "We support Joan Brennan."

Chapman was hospitalized with a broken ankle at Northwest Community Hospital and did not attend the dinner. Brennan, an Elk Grove Park District commissioner, also is seeking election to the Illinois House from the 3rd Legislative District as a Democrat. Voters traditionally have elected only one Democrat from the district.

Norman said the organization does not oppose anyone's candidacy, but when asked directly if he supported Chapman, Norman would say only "We support Joan Brennan." Norman offered no reason for his split with Chapman.

Chapman said Sunday Norman has not invited her to a Wheeling Township Democratic Organization function for more than a year.

"It would be nice to know if this is a stand of the committeeman or of the organization. If it is the stand of the organization, I wonder when they decided to do it."

Teacher an expert on duck, geese life

to make sure it's well fed and has good conditions for growing."

UNLIKE PREPARING for dog or cat shows, the bird breeder doesn't need to teach the animals special tricks. "It's not so much a training as a taming," he said. Before he takes a bird to show he gets it used to the cage and people so it can be relaxed when the judges make their rounds.

He said another difference is birds don't make good pets. "You can't have pets because you have too many birds. They come and go," he said. People who make pets out of their birds tend to keep the wrong birds and do not have the proper breeding material. These people usually do not win at shows either, he said.

Horton used to bring some of his birds to school each spring. "Students took a lot of interest with the birds in the courtyard," he said. Some problems with outsiders hurting the birds stopped that spring attraction, though.

When Grove had a marsh area near the school, a mallard drake also made his appointed round each spring to mate with a new female. Students used to ask him why the mallard disappeared after a short while.

THEIR CONCERNS were put to rest when he explained the female was brooding so her mate refused to come out during the day and expose her to possible danger. Sure enough, within a short while, the two would be seen again romping in the yard.

Birds he does not need for breeding or exhibition Horton sells to others who might use them for breeding. Those that aren't sold for breeding purposes are sold for their meat. This year, however, he sold all his excess birds for breeding.

He carefully screens people who might want to purchase a bird as a pet. "For many people water fowl are not a proper pet. What is cute as a day-old downy duckling, is not cute when it's full grown," he said.

His hobby also has placed him in some unusual circumstances.

RECENTLY HE was called into court as an expert on water fowl to testify that there is a difference between ducks and geese.

Someone sued a DuPage County resident whose ducks got loose one Walker on the veto of $115 million in state school aid funds. But they also say Norman still is angered by Chapman and several other active Democratic women because he was not elected as a delegate to the Democrat's mini-convention in Kansas City in 1974.

While introducing several candidates, Norman also sparked a walkout by a handful of supporters of former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter.

While promoting his eligibility as a candidate for delegate to the Democratic National Convention pledged to U.S. Sen. Hubert Humphrey, Norman criticized Carter supporters for distributing Carter's literature without Norman's permission.

"IF THIS IS what Jimmy Carter has to do to be elected president, then it is pretty sneaky," Norman said.

Several Carter supporters, including Steven Maddock, of Elk Grove Township, a Carter delegate candidate walked out.

Later Maddock's mother, Rene Maddock, the Elk Grove Township Democratic Committeewoman, said "This is just stupid I thought this was supposed to be a Democratic organization."

State Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park, the Democratic State Central Committeeman, said he thought Norman was just "uptight" over the campaign for delegate election. Pierce also is a Carter delegate candidate.

Water supply dropping fast in suburbs

by KURT BAER

The Northwest suburbs are running a race with time as they try to head off what could easily become the gravest regional crisis in their history — a lack of water.

Wells in the Northwest suburbs are going dry. Not today. Hopefully not tomorrow.

But since 1958, the suburbs have been pumping water out of the ground faster than nature can replace it.

This "mining" of underground water results in a 10 to 20 foot average drop in the water table every year.

EXPERTS DIFFER in opinions of how much longer the suburbs can depend on well water for their growing numbers of residents and industries. Some predict serious problems as early as 1980.

Officials have come to recognize the seriousness of their problem and are looking east to Lake Michigan for help.

Whether they get there in time could decide the future of the area.

"There is no more immediate or more difficult challenge facing the communities of Northwest Cook County than our fresh water supply," Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan told the Illinois Water Resources Commission during a recent hearing at the Arlington Park Hilton hotel.

"Water rationing is no longer on the distant horizon. The time has come when something has to be done."

COMMUNITIES HAVE started to attack on three fronts: purchase water from the City of Chicago, develop an independent Lake Michigan water supply for the area, and adopt and enforce new conservation measures.

Homeowners and businessmen can expect the push for more water to cost them more money in higher water rates and special taxes.

One conservative cost estimate for constructing a water main from the suburbs to the northwest boundary of Chicago put the figure at $29 million.

Eight Northwest suburbs are currently aligned in the effort for Chicago water. Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Buffalo Grove — SHARE + 3 — each have contributed $5,000 to get the project off the ground.

SHARE + 3 is only four months old and has yet to formally approach Chicago for the water it wants.

PROOF THAT THE job is not easy can be found in the 19-year-old efforts of the Des Plaines, Arlington Heights,

Mount Prospect, Palatine Water Commission (DAMP).

Interstate lawsuits over the diversion of Lake Michigan water thwarted DAMP's request for a lake water allocation from 1959 to 1966.

In 1971, DAMP finally received state authority to divert 35.9 cubic feet per second of lake water for the suburbs, only to have the allocation overturned a year later because of a lawsuit filed by the Metropolitan Sanitary District and the North Shore Sanitary District.

DAMP again requested lake water at a July 1975 public hearing before the Illinois Department of Transportation. The state's decision is expected this summer.

"We've got governments in Northeast Illinois fighting each other with tax dollars, all to get the same thing — water," Arlington Heights Public Works Director Gene Willroth told the Illinois Water Resources Commission.

"If we don't get some overall regulation, water will be so damn expensive we won't be able to afford to drink it," he said.

Arlington Heights has suggested the formation of a regional water authority for Northeast Illinois.

WITHOUT DEALING with the obvious political problems in its proposal, village officials say a regional authority is the only sensible solution to the continued depletion of ground water and the allocation of lake water.

It is a suggestion endorsed by Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert.

"I think we all envision that someday there will be a regional water authority for the area," Teichert said at a recent SHARE + 3 meeting. "I would like to see an authority not controlled by the City of Chicago, but by all the users," he said.

A regional authority could correct the inequity created when one town spends millions of taxpayers dollars to get lake water and by so doing leaves more "lower-cost" water in the ground for other municipalities.

It also could prevent one village from "robbing" a neighboring community by drilling wells too close to its border.

A REGIONAL referee to oversee the use of water in Northeast Illinois may be a sensible theory. But one member of the Illinois Water Resources Commission voices a warning.

"Don't be too anxious to invest this authority in another bureaucracy," said Richard A. Pavia, acting commissioner of Chicago's department of (Continued on Page 8)

Dan faces new foes in a very old battle

It's tough enough being the Governor of Illinois these days without having a bunch of kids, who can't even vote, breathing down your neck.

Especially in an election year, when some half-wits who work for newspapers and television stations keep wanting all the juicy facts on your campaign contributors.

Those quibblers just don't seem to listen when you tell them to hang loose on campaign funding, that everything will be cool later.

Now, Daniel Walker has more serious problems. He's really stumbled over himself this time.

Governor Dan, "The Peepul's Man," has unknowingly rewritten an essential part of the educational process.

HE'S GONE and turned natural enemies into friends. Teachers and kids now like each other. Or so it seems.

That's bad. It could spell Walker's doom.

You must first understand that high school kids are constantly searching for their identity and being challenged to do something productive with their lives.

This causes all sorts of anguish. As a temporary cure, kids latch onto popular causes. This keeps them busy.

Some kids got their chance to lash back at one of society's many injustices last Friday morning when Governor Dan brought his traveling accountability session to Wheeling High School.

DAN FOUND a wonderfully responsive audience. Kids had the choice of attending his question-answer session, or they could spend the hour watching ants crawl across the cafeteria floor.

Most kids buckled up their political belts and decided they would not watch ants until later.

After all, you can watch ants struggle with hot dog crumbs any old time. It's the rare morning that a real live flesh and blood governor comes to the gymnasium.

So kids came face-to-face with Governor Dan.

You can't believe how upset kids are these days over Illinois' teacher pension program.

Y fund drive starts Wednesday

A campaign to raise $100,000 from residents for construction of a YMCA facility in Schaumburg will begin Wednesday.

General chairman of the Twinbrook YMCA Family Builder Campaign, Dale Alm, said some 200 persons will be attending the campaign dinner at 7 p.m. in the Itasca Holiday Inn.

The Y building, to house administration, activity and racquetball areas, will be constructed on 15 acres on Wise Road.

Proceeds of the drive will go for construction of the building, final payment of the land and current operating support for the Twinbrook YMCA operation.

The Y currently serves 4,000 members from Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg, Roselle, Hanover Park, Bloomington, Medinah and parts of Elk Grove Village and Itasca.

The fund drive will conclude March 14 with a victory banquet.

Judge to give final OK

K & B lawsuit settlement seen in court Tuesday

Settlement of a class action lawsuit totaling $15,000 against Kaufman and Broad Homes Inc. will be presented in Cook County Circuit Court for final approval Tuesday.

The suit, filed by the Barrington Square Improvement Assn. and its president, Gordon Line, will be presented to Circuit Court Judge Nathan Cohen for his final consent.

Line said Cohen "to date has indicated to me the terms of the settlement were all right."

The settlement calls for $15,000 to be paid among the "class" or the homeowners involved in the action.

The $15,000 settlement could go to members of the improvement association, the entire Barrington Square area, or a number of the homeowners, Line said.

The suit was filed following convictions of former village officials, who took bribes from K & B to zone Barrington Square in 1968. The homeowners charged the price of their units was inflated to pay for the bribes.

In September members of the association agreed to an out-of-court settlement with developers totaling $300,000 on another aspect of the lawsuit.

A cash payment of $50,000 was made to the association with another $250,000 to be paid in improvements for Barrington Square, including construction of tennis courts and a baseball diamond.

Line said the suit to be settled Tuesday should end the association's litigation with K & B.

2 leave ballet behind for model building

by PAT GERLACH

Rough and tumble little boys build model tanks and airplanes while their dainty sisters skip off to ballet and charm courses, right?

Wrong, at least in the case of two young ladies who jumped boundaries of sex stereotyping when they signed up for Schaumburg Park District's Friday afternoon model building class.

And neither Mary Ann Kroll or Cindy Bulin give any indication of having been influenced by the Women's Lib movement when they made local history by being the first girls to enroll in what has in the past been a strictly male park district activity.

"I JUST LIKE building models," said Mary Ann, a sixth grader at Collins School, as she thoughtfully poured over the directions for her first project... a World War II German Panzer tank complete with assault gun.

Nine-year-old Cindy Bulin shares Mary Ann's enthusiasm for "building things," though she said she has not decided what her second class project will be.

Both girls appeared oblivious to working with a room full of boys.

Cindy, a fourth grader at Camp-anelli School, showed extreme patience in painting her tank, though she was appreciative of the help she received from instructor Randy Guenin. Guenin, an Eastern Airlines employee, teaches the class along with Duane Hosimer, park recreation supervisor.

THE MEN SPRINKLE their instruction with a liberal dose of history, explaining the significance of using authentic paint colors and stripping. They also encourage realism by having the students add dirt, mud and dents to their work.

"I think it's fine," remarked 8-year-old John Doherty of his female model-building companions.

Vote expected this week on Chambers merger

The Hoffman Estates Chamber of Commerce will vote Thursday on a proposed merger with the Greater Schaumburg Assn. of Commerce and Industry.

Chamber vice president William Cowin said the group will vote on several issues, including the merger resolution, interim officers and board members.

The Schaumburg group with about 100 members has indicated it will vote on the merger Friday.

Cowin said if both groups support the resolution, about three weeks will be required to clear the merger through the Illinois Secretary of State's office.

"I'm sure the merger will be supported by most, if not all of the members of the Hoffman Estates Chamber," Pres Arthur Kelter said.

The most significant advantage of the chamber merger, Kelter said, is that "in the eyes of the public, there will be solidarity in the business community."

Kelter said he expects the membership of the chamber to increase, should merger plans be successful. There are 50 members in the Hoffman group.

"There are business people in both communities who have refused to join either chamber until a merger takes place," he said. "We should pick up quite a few members."

Dem dinner sparks animosity

Norman-Chapman rift growing

by STEVE BROWN

The split between Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman Donald Norman and State Rep. Eugene Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, has widened, with Norman now openly refusing to support Chapman for reelection.

Voters traditionally have elected only one Democrat from the district.

Norman said the organization does not oppose anyone's candidacy, but when asked directly if he supported Chapman, Norman would say only "We support Joan Brennan." Norman offered no reason for his split with Chapman.

Chapman said Sunday Norman has not invited her to a Wheeling Township Democratic Organization function for more than a year.

Chapman said she was "not one to play on divisiveness. Donald Norman has never told me he was the least bit dissatisfied with my performance as a legislator. I hope that in November we can be united in electing Democratic candidates in all offices."

REPORTS OF the split between Chapman and Norman had circulated during the past months, but his comments at the dance are thought to be the first public occasion that he has failed to openly support the local lawmaker.

State Rep. Harold Katz, D-Glenview, attended the dinner and was reportedly planning to offer an explanation why Chapman was not at the affair, but Norman did not allow him to speak.

Several reliable sources suggest Norman is opposed to Chapman, because of vote to support Gov. Daniel Walker on the veto of $115 million in state school aid funds. But they also say Norman still is angered by Chapman and several other active Democratic women because he was not elected as a delegate to the Democrat's mini-convention in Kansas City in 1974.

looking east to Lake Michigan for help.

Whether they get there in time could decide the future of the area.

"There is no more immediate or more difficult challenge facing the communities of Northwest Cook County than our fresh water supply," Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan told the Illinois Water Resources Commission during a recent hearing at the Arlington Park Hilton hotel.

"Water rationing is no longer on the distant horizon. The time has come when something has to be done."

COMMUNITIES HAVE started to attack on three fronts: purchase water from the City of Chicago, develop an independent Lake Michigan water supply for the area, and adopt and enforce new conservation measures.

Homeowners and businessmen can expect the push for more water to cost them more money in higher water rates and special taxes.

One conservative cost estimate for constructing a water main from the suburbs to the northwest boundary of Chicago put the figure at $29 million.

Eight Northwest suburbs are currently aligned in the effort for Chicago water. Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Buffalo Grove — SHARE + 3 — each have contributed $5,000 to get the project off the ground.

SHARE + 3 is only four months old and has yet to formally approach Chicago for the water it wants.

PROOF THAT THE job is not easy can be found in the 19-year-old efforts of the Des Plaines, Arlington Heights,

Mount Prospect, Palatine Water Commission (DAMP).

Interstate lawsuits over the diversion of Lake Michigan water thwarted DAMP's request for a lake water allocation from 1959 to 1966.

In 1971, DAMP finally received state authority to divert 35.9 cubic feet per second of lake water for the suburbs, only to have the allocation overturned a year later because of a lawsuit filed by the Metropolitan Sanitary District and the North Shore Sanitary District.

DAMP again requested lake water at a July 1975 public hearing before the Illinois Department of Transportation. The state's decision is expected this summer.

"We've got governments in North-east Illinois fighting each other with tax dollars, all to get the same thing — water," Arlington Heights Public Works Director Gene Willbroth told the Illinois Water Resources Commission.

"If we don't get some overall regulation, water will be so damn expensive we won't be able to afford to drink it," he said.

Arlington Heights has suggested the formation of a regional water authority for Northeast Illinois.

WITHOUT DEALING with the obvious political problems in its proposal, village officials say a regional authority is the only sensible solution to the continued depletion of ground water and the allocation of lake water.

It is a suggestion endorsed by Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert.

"I think we all envision that someday there will be a regional water authority for the area," Teichert said at a recent SHARE + 3 meeting. "I would like to see an authority not controlled by the City of Chicago, but by all the users," he said.

A regional authority could correct the inequity created when one town spends millions of taxpayers dollars to get lake water and by so doing leaves more "lower-cost" water in the ground for other municipalities.

It also could prevent one village from "robbing" a neighboring community by drilling wells too close to its border.

A REGIONAL referee to oversee the use of water in Northeast Illinois may be a sensible theory. But one member of the Illinois Water Resources Commission voices a warning.

"Don't be too anxious to invest this authority in another bureaucracy," said Richard A. Pavia, acting commissioner of Chicago's department of (Continued on Page 8)

Dan faces new foes in a very old battle

It's tough enough being the Governor of Illinois these days without having a bunch of kids, who can't even vote, breathing down your neck.

Especially in an election year, when some half-wits who work for newspapers and television stations keep wanting all the juicy facts on your campaign contributors.

Those quibblers just don't seem to listen when you tell them to hang loose on campaign funding, that everything will be cool later.

Now, Daniel Walker has more serious problems. He's really stumbled over himself this time.

Governor Dan, "The Peepul's Man," has unknowingly rewritten an essential part of the educational process.

HE'S GONE and turned natural enemies into friends. Teachers and kids now like each other. Or so it seems.

That's bad. It could spell Walker's doom.

You must first understand that high school kids are constantly searching for their identity and being challenged to do something productive with their lives.

This causes all sorts of anguish. As a temporary cure, kids latch onto popular causes. This keeps them busy.

Some kids got their chance to lash back at one of society's many injustices last Friday morning when Governor Dan brought his traveling accountability session to Wheeling High School.

DAN FOUND a wonderfully responsive audience. Kids had the choice of attending his question-answer session, or they could spend the hour watching ants crawl across the cafeteria floor.

Most kids buckled up their political belts and decided they would not watch ants until later.

After all, you can watch ants struggle with hot dog crumbs any old time. It's the rare morning that a real live flesh and blood governor comes to the gymnasium.

So kids came face-to-face with Governor Dan.

You can't believe how upset kids are these days over Illinois' teacher pension program.

Insures nondrinking driver

Company serves unique clientele

by JERRY THOMAS

It's a sobering thought. Nondrinking drivers can save up to 45 per cent on car insurance payments.

Central Security Mutual Insurance Co., Rolling Meadows, offers reduced insurance rates to the nondrinker. The company is the only insurance firm of its kind.

WHILE OTHER insurance companies may offer reduced rates or other special insurance policies, for the Rolling Meadows insurance company the total abstainer is its only customer.

"All we sell is car insurance to nondrinkers," Pres. Harold Nicodem said.

"Liquor industries calculate that gives us a market of 10 to 20 per cent of the nation's approximately seven million licensed drivers as our potential customers," he said.

Central Insurance was founded 23 years ago and still operates on the philosophy that nondrinkers are the safest drivers and those who do not drink should not pay higher premium rates to pay for accidents caused by drunken drivers.

The company has 21,000 accounts in four Midwestern states, with 60 per cent of its business in northern Illinois.

DO NONDRINKERS have fewer accidents?

"You can't change human nature just by laying off the bottle," Wayne Brei, vice president of the claims department, said.

"Sure they have accidents. However, they are of less serious nature, the fender bender variety instead of the head-on crash at high speed," he said.

Because the company pays out less in insurance claims, it is able to pass on that savings to the customer.

"OUR INSURANCE rate is basically 15 per cent below that charged by bureau companies," Nicodem said. "In addition to the initial reduction, we allow a 10 per cent reduction every year

Poll places listed for library vote

Polling places have been set for Saturday's Rolling Meadows library referendum.

The referendum is being held to seek an increase in the library tax rate from 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation to 29 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

POLLS WILL be open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday.

Library officials have said the increase is necessary to maintain current library operations and prevent cutbacks in operations.

Librarian Judith Drescher said Friday no study has been done on how extensive cutbacks would be if the referendum fails, but she said curtailing hours of operation would have to be considered.

"The most obvious thing would be to cut the time we are open because of costs in heat and electricity," she said. "Then we would probably look at cutting back on the number of hours our people work here and that would mean cuts in programming."

SHE SAID funds for book purchases would also decrease because if extra money is needed for other library operations it is taken from the book fund.

The library is open from 9 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

"We would like to be open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sunday," Mrs. Drescher said. "We're the only one in the area that isn't open on Sunday."

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15

The Playmakers will visit Lincoln School, Tuesday presenting improvisational and education theater for the students. Through music, song, dance and pantomime the actors involve the children in their program.

The school is at 1021 Ridgewood Ln., Palatine.

PTA and PTSA Family Night Tuesday at Plum Grove School will be a celebration of the Bicentennial and PTA Founder Day. The meeting will start at 7:30 p.m. at the school, 26 W. Old Plum Grove Rd., Palatine.

Art and Ruth Yowwer will give square dance instructions and everyone is invited to join in an old fashioned hoe-down.

High School Dist. 211

Jacqueline Ferrario, a senior at Palatine High School, has been chosen to be a presidential freshman scholar at Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa.

The annual Scholastic Art Show at Wieboldt's in Randhurst through Saturday will feature work of a number of Conant High School art students. Seventy pieces of art work by Conant artists have been chosen to be viewed by the public.

Students awarded gold keys and blue ribbons are Diane Prybylski, watercolor; Eric Hanson, pencil drawing; and Dave Gould, watercolor.

High School Dist. 214

Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa, has chosen four area students as presidential freshman scholars. The scholarship awards are presented each year to students who graduate in the top 10 per cent of their high school class.

Saint Viator High School

A representative from DeVry Institute visited St. Viator High School, Arlington Heights, recently to show a film and answer questions about careers and education in electronics and technology.

Junior and senior students attended the presentation as part of an on-going career education program at St. Viator.

In general . . .

Mary Kooyumjian, specialist in gifted education, will discuss "How Parents and Teachers Can Help to Develop Different Areas of Giftedness in Children" at 9:30 a.m. Monday, in the Dunton Room of Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton, Arlington Heights.

Ms. Kooyumjian is director of the graduate courses in gifted education in the department of special education at Northeastern Illinois University.

The meeting, open to the public, will also include a question and answer period. Ms. Kooyumjian will display materials such as books and games especially suited for gifted children.

Friends of Gifted Children, an organization whose purpose is to promote programs and services for gifted and talented students, will sponsor this program.

Dem dinner sparks animosity

Norman-Chapman rift growing

by STEVE BROWN

The split between Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman Donald Norman and State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, has widened, with Norman now openly refusing to support Chapman for reelection.

Norman's comments came after the organization's annual dinner dance, which may have created more animosity than party solidarity among active Democrats in the area.

Norman did not mention Chapman's name during the evening Friday, which included speeches by a seemingly endless line of candidates, including Sec. of State Michael Howlett, Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan and State Senate Pres. Cecil Pardee, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for attorney general.

QUESTIONED AFTER the dinner about why the 12-year Democratic veteran's name did not arise during the evening, Norman said, "We support Joan Brennan."

Chapman was hospitalized with a broken ankle at Northwest Community Hospital and did not attend the dinner. Brennan, an Elk Grove Park District commissioner, also is seeking election to the Illinois House from the 3rd Legislative District as a Democrat. Voters traditionally have elected only one Democrat from the district.

Norman said the organization does not oppose anyone's candidacy, but when asked directly if he supported Chapman, Norman would say only "We support Joan Brennan." Norman offered no reason for his split with Chapman.

Chapman said Sunday Norman has not invited her to a Wheeling Township Democratic Organization function for more than a year.

Chapman said she was "not one to play on divisiveness. Donald Norman has never told me he was the least bit dissatisfied with my performance as a legislator. I hope that in November we can be united in electing Democratic candidates in all offices."

Eugenia Chapman

Donald Norman

REPORTS OF the split between Chapman and Norman had circulated during the past months, but his comments at the dance are thought to be the first public occasion that he has failed to openly support the local lawmaker.

State Rep. Harold Katz, D-Glenview, attended the dinner and was reportedly planning to offer an explanation why Chapman was not at the affair, but Norman did not allow him to speak.

Several reliable sources suggest Norman is opposed to Chapman, because of vote to support Gov. Daniel Walker on the veto of $115 million in state school aid funds. But they also say Norman still is angered by Chapman and several other active Democratic women because he was not elected as a delegate to the Democrat's mini-convention in Kansas City in 1974.

While introducing several candidates, Norman also sparked a walkout by a handful of supporters of former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter.

While promoting his eligibility as a candidate for delegate to the Democratic National Convention pledged to U.S. Sen. Hubert Humphrey, Norman criticized Carter supporters for distributing Carter's literature without Norman's permission.

"IF THIS IS what Jimmy Carter has to do to be elected president, then it is pretty sneaky," Norman said.

Several Carter supporters, including Steven Maddock, of Elk Grove Township, a Carter delegate, candidate walked out.

Later Maddock's mother, Rene Maddock, the Elk Grove Township Democratic Committeewoman, said "This is just stupid. I thought this was supposed to be a Democratic organization."

though the referendum asks for a 14-cent increase, the tax rate would only rise a few pennies each year if the measure passes. Residents would begin paying the new tax rate in September 1977.

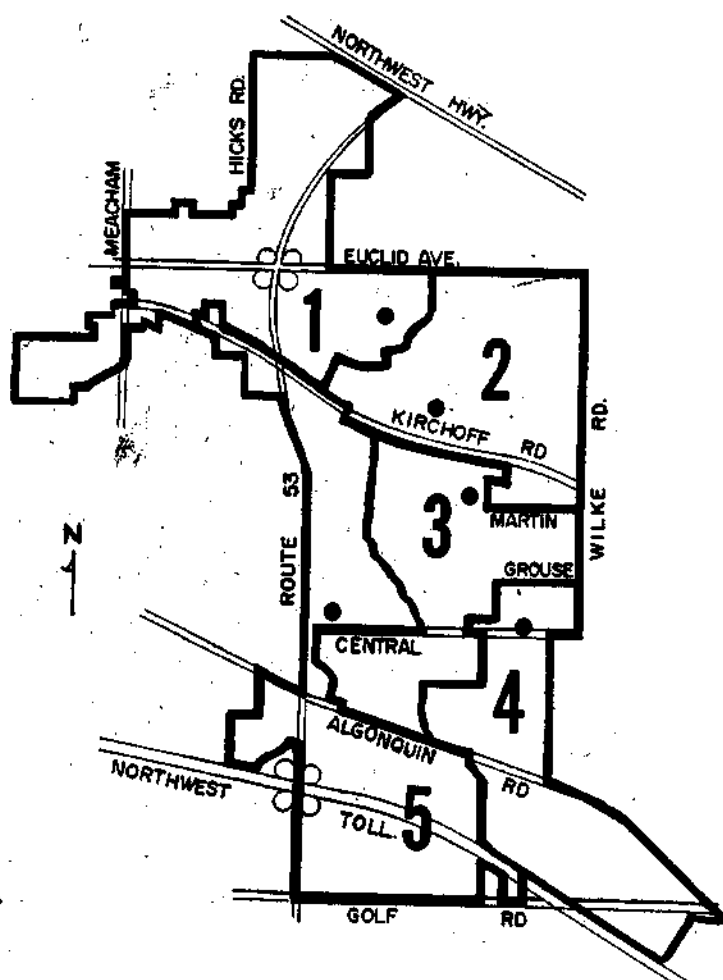

"We're really asking for more money to maintain what we have," Mrs. Drescher said.

Residents with an average home assessment of $7,000 pay about $10.00 per year in library taxes under the current rate. If the rate is increased by 4 cents in 1977, officials have said the average tax rate would rise about $2.80 to $13.60.

Laundry room fire extinguished

Palatine firefighters extinguished a laundry room fire Sunday afternoon at 1736 S. Meacham Rd., Palatine Township.

Smoke damage to the one-story building was reported. The cause of the fire, which started about 12:25 a.m., was still under investigation, fire officials said. No one was home at the time of the fire.

POLLING PLACES for Saturday's Rolling Meadows library referendum are indicated by dots. They are: Ward 1, Cardinal Drive School; Ward 2, Kimball Hill for three years up to a maximum of 30 per cent.

"More than 75 per cent of our clients have earned and maintained for many years an average of a 42 per cent reduced insurance rate," he said.

Do people lie about their drinking habits in order to obtain the lower insurance rate?

"Rarely. In the 23-year history of the company, we canceled only 12 policies approximately," Nicodem said.

In contrast to other insurance companies, Central Insurance does not take brokerage business.

"All of our insurance is written by our licensed agents who make personal contact with each customer. The agent is a total abstainer and the first thing he asks a potential customer is, 'are you a total abstainer also?'" Nicodem said.

"IF A VISIT to the home does not adequately convince the agent that the customer is a nondrinker, we may ask a neighbor if our prospective client has been seen lifting a beer or is known to drink," he said.

"However, this is seldom necessary as the bulk of our business comes from those religious groups that, as a part of their philosophy, do not believe in drinking."

Nicodem said the company moved to Rolling Meadows six years ago. It is financially stable and, according to Nicodem, has made a profit this past fiscal year in contrast to other larger firms.

Nicodem credits the company's success to its operation as a stewardship as well as a business. "The company is controlled and operated by competent insurance executives, who are first of all dedicated Christians," he said.

Water supply dropping fast in suburbs

by KURT BAER

The Northwest suburbs are running a race with time as they try to head off what could easily become the gravest regional crisis in their history — a lack of water.

Wells in the Northwest suburbs are going dry. Not today. Hopefully not tomorrow.

But since 1968, the suburbs have been pumping water out of the ground faster than nature can replace it.

This "mining" of underground water results in a 10 to 20 foot average drop in the water table every year.

EXPERTS DIFFER in opinions of how much longer the suburbs can depend on well water for their growing numbers of residents and industries. Some predict serious problems as early as 1980.

Officials have come to recognize the seriousness of their problem and are looking east to Lake Michigan for help.

Whether they get there in time could decide the future of the area.

"There is no more immediate or more difficult challenge facing the communities of Northwest Cook County than our fresh water supply," Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan told the Illinois Water Resources Commission during a recent hearing at the Arlington Park Hilton hotel.

"Water rationing is no longer on the distant horizon. The time has come when something has to be done."

COMMUNITIES HAVE started to attack on three fronts: purchase water from the City of Chicago, develop an independent Lake Michigan water supply for the area, and adopt and enforce new conservation measures. Homeowners and businessmen can expect the push for more water to cost them more money in higher water rates and special taxes.

One conservative cost estimate for constructing a water main from the suburbs to the northwest boundary of Chicago put the figure at $29 million.

Eight Northwest suburbs are currently aligned in the effort for Chicago water. Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Buffalo Grove — SHARE + 3 — each have contributed $5,000 to get the project off the ground.

SHARE + 3 is only four months old and has yet to formally approach Chicago for the water it wants.

PROOF THAT THE job is not easy can be found in the 19-year-old efforts of the Des Plaines, Arlington Heights,

Mount Prospect, Palatine Water Commission (DAMP).

Interstate lawsuits over the diversion of Lake Michigan water thwarted DAMP's request for a lake water allocation from 1959 to 1966.

In 1971, DAMP finally received state authority to divert 35.9 cubic feet per second of lake water for the suburbs, only to have the allocation overturned a year later because of a lawsuit filed by the Metropolitan Sanitary District and the North Shore Sanitary District.

DAMP again requested lake water at a July 1975 public hearing before the Illinois Department of Transportation. The state's decision is expected this summer.

"We've got governments in Northeast Illinois fighting each other with tax dollars, all to get the same thing — water," Arlington Heights Public Works Director Gene Willroth told the Illinois Water Resources Commission.

"If we don't get some overall regulation, water will be so damn expensive we won't be able to afford to drink it," he said.

Arlington Heights has suggested the formation of a regional water authority for Northeast Illinois.

WITHOUT DEALING with the obvious political problems in its proposal, village officials say a regional authority is the only sensible solution to the continued depletion of ground water and the allocation of lake water.

It is a suggestion endorsed by Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert.

"I think we all envision that someday there will be a regional water authority for the area," Teichert said at a recent SHARE + 3 meeting. "I would like to see an authority not controlled by the City of Chicago, but by all the users," he said.

A regional authority could correct the inequity created when one town spends millions of taxpayers dollars to get lake water and by so doing leaves more "lower-cost" water in the ground for other municipalities.

It also could prevent one village from "robbing" a neighboring community by drilling wells too close to its border.

A REGIONAL referee to oversee the use of water in Northeast Illinois may be a sensible theory. But one member of the Illinois Water Resources Commission voices a warning.

"Don't be too anxious to invest this authority in another bureaucracy," said Richard A. Pavia, acting commissioner of Chicago's department of (Continued on Page 8)

Dan faces new foes in a very old battle

It's tough enough being the Governor of Illinois these days without having a bunch of kids, who can't even vote, breathing down your neck.

Especially in an election year, when some half-wits who work for newspapers and television stations keep wanting all the juicy facts on your campaign contributors.

Those quibblers just don't seem to listen when you tell them to hang loose on campaign funding, that everything will be cool later.

Now, Daniel Walker has more serious problems. He's really stumbled over himself this time.

Governor Dan, "The Peepul's Man," has unknowingly rewritten an essential part of the educational process.

HE'S GONE and turned natural enemies into friends. Teachers and kids now like each other. Or so it seems.

That's bad. It could spell Walker's doom.

You must first understand that high school kids are constantly searching for their identity and being challenged to do something productive with their lives.

This causes all sorts of anguish.

As a temporary cure, kids latch onto popular causes. This keeps them busy.

Some kids got their chance to lash back at one of society's many injustices last Friday morning when Governor Dan brought his traveling accountability session to Wheeling High School.

DAN FOUND a wonderfully responsive audience. Kids had the choice of attending his question-answer session, or they could spend the hour watching ants crawl across the cafeteria floor.

Most kids buckled up their political belts and decided they would not watch ants until later.

After all, you can watch ants struggle with hot dog crumbs any old time. It's the rare morning that a real live flesh and blood governor comes to the gymnasium.

So kids came face-to-face with Governor Dan.

You can't believe how upset kids are these days over Illinois' teacher pension program.

Heatherlea bid for annexation in jeopardy?

Annexation of the unincorporated Heatherlea subdivision appears to be in jeopardy, Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones says.

Jones said the number of names on the petition needed to bring about the annexation of the subdivision, southwest of Cunningham Drive and Hicks Road, may not be enough to convince a Circuit Court judge to allow the action. "To me it looks very, very much in jeopardy and I just don't think it's going to happen," Jones said.

Petitions were presented in Cook County Circuit Court in November asking the court to grant the annexation. The court is checking the validity of signatures on the petition to see if they meet the requirements.

MORE THAN 50 per cent of the registered voters and property owners plus owners of 50 per cent of the property in the northern subdivision must be validated as signing the petition for the matter to be approved.

The village board has already agreed to accept the area and it is up to the Circuit Court to decide whether the petitions are in order.

Jones said the number of names submitted is so close to the number actually needed that if one name proves to be invalid, the entire petition could be thrown out. He said because the number of names is so low, about 50.7 per cent, an objector to the action could file a petition which the court could see fit to acknowledge, Jones said.

"It is not a mandate and because it's been protracted over such a long time, it seems to me the court is likely to throw it out," Jones said.

ALLAN FINKELMAN, an organizer of the petition drive, disagreed with Jones and said there is an excess of names required for the annexation.

"I don't see much of a problem in this area because we are well in excess of the required number of names," Finkelman said. He said the number of registered voters who signed the petition is about 50.8 per cent, but he said additional petitions with more names are ready to be submitted to the court.

Finkelman said he did not know when the court would complete its review of the petitions.

Jones said he believes there is a better chance that the Palatine Park Estates subdivision will annex to the village. The area has been contemplating annexation since the village approved a 68.3 per cent utility rate increase for the area, which now receives village water.

Homeowners in the subdivision, located south of Northwest Highway and Quentin Road, said they would consider annexation if it meant a reduction in their utility bills.

A spokesman for the subdivision said meetings are scheduled to be held this week to discuss if petitions for annexation should be circulated.

Village to set administrative salaries tonight

Administrative salaries for 1976 are expected to be set tonight by the Palatine Village Board.

The board will meet in executive session to review and evaluate village administrators. Officials are expected to announce the salaries following the executive session. The figures will be included in the 1976-77 budget which is being prepared by village officials.

The board will meet at 9 p.m. at the Palatine Public Library, 500 N. Benton St. A meeting of the streets and traffic committee will precede the board meeting at 8 p.m.

The board plans to discuss the proposed land dedication ordinance which would require builders to provide property for park and school

Dem dinner provokes animosity

Rift between Norman, Chapman is widening

by STEVE BROWN

The split between Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman Donald Norman and State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, has widened, with Norman now openly refusing to support Chapman for reelection.

Norman's comments came after the organization's annual dinner dance, which may have created more animosity than party solidarity among active Democrats in the area.

Norman did not mention Chapman's name during the evening Friday, which included speeches by a seemingly endless line of candidates, including Sec. of State Michael Howlett, Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan and State Senate Pres. Cecil Pardee, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for attorney general.

QUESTIONED AFTER the dinner about why the 12-year Democratic veteran's name did not arise during the evening, Norman said, "We support Joan Brennan."

Chapman was hospitalized with a broken ankle at Northwest Community Hospital and did not attend the dinner. Brennan, an Elk Grove Park District commissioner, also is seeking election to the Illinois House from the Palatine firefighters extinguished a laundry room fire Sunday afternoon at 1736 S. Meacham Rd., Palatine Township.

Smoke damage to the one-story building was reported. The cause of the fire, which started about 12:25 a.m., was still under investigation, fire officials said. No one was home at the time of the fire.

3rd Legislative District as a Democrat. Voters traditionally have elected only one Democrat from the district.

Norman said the organization does not oppose anyone's candidacy, but when asked directly if he supported Chapman, Norman would say only "We support Joan Brennan." Norman offered no reason for his split with Chapman.

Chapman said Sunday Norman has not invited her to a Wheeling Township Democratic Organization function for more than a year.

Chapman said she was "not one to play on divisiveness. Donald Norman has never told me he was the least bit dissatisfied with my performance as a legislator. I hope that in November we can be united in electing Democratic candidates in all offices."

REPORTS OF the split between Chapman and Norman had circulated during the past months, but his comments at the dinner are thought to be the first public occasion that he has failed to openly support the local lawmaker.

State Rep. Harold Katz, D-Glencoe, attended the dinner and was reportedly planning to offer an explanation why Chapman was not at the affair, but Norman did not allow him to speak.

Several reliable sources suggest Norman is opposed to Chapman, because of vote to support Gov. Daniel Walker on the veto of $115 million in state school aid funds. But they also say Norman still is angered by Chapman and several other active Democratic women because he was not elected as a delegate to the Democrat's mini-convention in Kansas City in 1974.

While introducing several candidates, Norman also sparked a walkout by a handful of supporters of former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter.

While promoting his eligibility as a candidate for delegate to the Democratic National Convention pledged to U.S. Sen. Hubert Humphrey, Norman criticized Carter's literature without Norman's permission.

"IF THIS IS what Jimmy Carter has to do to be elected president, then it is pretty sneaky," Norman said.

Several Carter supporters, including Steven Maddock, of Elk Grove Township, a Carter delegate candidate walked out.

Later Maddock's mother, Rene Maddock, the Elk Grove Township Democratic Committeewoman, said "This is just stupid. I thought this was supposed to be a Democratic organization."

LOOKING AT MAPS and globes is old hat to Palatine's Alma and George Schroeder, who have driven, flown, or boated to every state in the Union during the last 45 years.

Pair visits 50 states; wants more

by JUDIE BLACK

Alma and George Schroeder met on the move 46 years ago, and they haven't stopped since.

They met one morning in 1930 on the Chicago and North Western Ry. train. During their nearly 45 years of marriage, the semi-retired Palatine couple has visited each of the 50 states. They've worn out seven cars traveling crooked country roads and superhighways.

"We just like to be on the go," Mrs. Schroeder said. And go they have — up New Hampshire's White Mountains, the highest range east of the Mississippi River; north to Alaska along 1,100 miles of unpaved road and east to a point 35 miles north of the Arctic Circle where they ate scrambled sea gull eggs.

Last month they jetted to Hawaii, but not all their trips have been by plane or car. The Schroeders sailed down the Snake River through Idaho and Oregon on a boat that delivered mail to residents along the river bank.

SCHROEDER, 67, does nearly all the driving. Mrs. Schroeder is the navigator. "And the funny thing is I have no sense of direction 10 miles outside Palatine," she said with a laugh. Nevertheless, her husband has allowed her to direct them all over creation.

Frequently their friends have suggested the Schroeders take a relaxing vacation, find a beach somewhere and just plop under the sun.

"BUT WE ENJOY driving and seeing new things," Mrs. Schroeder said. She was a checker at a National Tea store for 17 years, and he has worked 40 years as a metal spinner in Des Plaines.

"We liked to go but it was always a relief to get home," Schroeder said of the house at 263 N. Benton St. where he, his wife and two daughters have lived since 1942.

Now that they have visited all 50 states, what new horizons tempt the two?

"Well," Mrs. Schroeder said, "there's always the chance Puerto Rico might become a state."

Insures nondrinking driver

Company serves unique clientele

by JERRY THOMAS

It's a sobering thought. Nondrinking drivers can save up to 45 per cent on car insurance payments.

Central Security Mutual Insurance Co., Rolling Meadows, offers reduced insurance rates to the nondrinker. The company is the only insurance firm of its kind.

WHILE OTHER insurance companies may offer reduced rates or other special insurance policies, for the Rolling Meadows insurance company the total abstainer is its only customer.

Palatine Park District and Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 have supported the measure.

The village currently negotiates with builders for land donations in conjunction with park and school officials. The ordinance would be the first time Palatine has ever mandated a land or cash-in-lieu-of-land donation from developers.

The proposed ordinance has been in the planning stages for more than a year and has been formulated in conjunction with officials from the park and school districts.

The streets and traffic committee will discuss the library parking situation. A gravel lot in back of the library provides the only parking for the area.

A large parking lot is scheduled to be completed this year when the Bank of Palatine Plaza, adjacent to the library, is completed.

ILLINOIS TRAFFIC SAFETY ALERT

Drive Alert In Illinois

It's a Great Place to LIVE

"All we sell is car insurance to nondrinkers," Pres. Harold Nicodem said.

"Liquor industries calculate that gives us a market of 10 to 20 per cent of the nation's approximately seven million licensed drivers as our potential customers," he said.

Central Insurance was founded 23 years ago and still operates on the philosophy that nondrinkers are the safest drivers and those who do not drink should not pay higher premium rates to pay for accidents caused by drunken drivers.

The company has 21,000 accounts in four Midwestern states, with 60 per cent of its business in northern Illinois.

DO NONDRINKERS have fewer accidents?

"You can't change human nature just by laying off the bottle," Wayne Brel, vice president of the claims department, said.

"Sure they have accidents. However, they are of less serious nature, the fender bender variety instead of the head-on crash at high speed," he said.

Because the company pays out less in insurance claims, it is able to pass on that savings to the customer.

"OUR INSURANCE rate is basically 15 per cent below that charged by bureau companies," Nicodem said. "In addition to the initial reduction, we allow a 10 per cent reduction every year for three years up to a maximum of 30 per cent.

"More than 75 per cent of our clients have earned and maintained for many years an average of a 42 per cent reduced insurance rate," he said.

Do people lie about their drinking habits in order to obtain the lower insurance rate?

"Rarely. In the 23-year history of the company, we canceled only 12 policies approximately," Nicodem said.

In contrast to other insurance companies, Central Insurance does not take brokerage business.

"All of our insurance is written by our licensed agents who make personal contact with each customer. The agent is a total abstainer and the first thing he asks a potential customer is, 'are you a total abstainer also?'" Nicodem said.

"IF A VISIT to the home does not adequately convince the agent that the customer is a nondrinker, we may ask a neighbor if our prospective client has been seen lifting a beer or is known to drink," he said.

"However, this is seldom necessary as the bulk of our business comes from those religious groups that, as a part of their philosophy, do not believe in drinking."

Nicodem said the company moved to Rolling Meadows six years ago. It is financially stable and, according to Nicodem, has made a profit this past fiscal year in contrast to other larger firms.

Nicodem credits the company's success to its operation as a stewardship as well as a business. "The company is controlled and operated by competent insurance executives, who are first of all dedicated Christians," he said.

Palatine Twp. to hear center request for funds

Northwest Opportunity Center's request for $11,099 for the next fiscal year will be acted on tonight by the Palatine Township Board of Auditors.

The center's request for $11,099 for 1976-77 is slightly higher than the $10,078 the center received from Palatine Township last year.

The board will consider the request at 8 p.m. at the township hall, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd.

Center director Michael Raimondi said the center's budget requests to townships are based on the number of hours the center's staff works with clients from each township.

The center receives funds from seven townships. Its request for $15,930 from Wheeling Township is the largest, Raimondi said.

The center's proposed budget for 1976-77 is $155,455, with $65,978 requested from the townships and $89,477 from the federal government.

Raimondi said the center has "an excellent rapport" with the township board and hopes for another "favorable response" to its budget request.

Water supply dropping fast in suburbs

by KURT BAER

The Northwest suburbs are running a race with time as they try to head off what could easily become the gravest regional crisis in their history — a lack of water.

Wells in the Northwest suburbs are going dry. Not today. Hopefully not tomorrow.

But since 1958, the suburbs have been pumping water out of the ground faster than nature can replace it.

This "mining" of underground water results in a 10 to 20 foot average drop in the water table every year.

EXPERTS DIFFER in opinions of how much longer the suburbs can depend on well water for their growing numbers of residents and industries. Some predict serious problems as early as 1980.

Officials have come to recognize the seriousness of their problem and are looking east to Lake Michigan for help.

Whether they get there in time could decide the future of the area.

"There is no more immediate or more difficult challenge facing the communities of Northwest Cook County than our fresh water supply," Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan told the Illinois Water Resources Commission during a recent hearing at the Arlington Park Hilton hotel.

"Water rationing is no longer on the distant horizon. The time has come when something has to be done."

COMMUNITIES HAVE started to attack on three fronts: purchase water from the City of Chicago, develop an independent Lake Michigan water supply for the area, and adopt and enforce new conservation measures.

Homeowners and businessmen can expect the push for more water to cost them more money in higher water rates and special taxes.

One conservative cost estimate for constructing a water main from the suburbs to the northwest boundary of Chicago put the figure at $29 million.

Eight Northwest suburbs are currently aligned in the effort for Chicago water. Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Buffalo Grove — SHARE + 3 — each have contributed $5,000 to get the project off the ground.

SHARE + 3 is only four months old and has yet to formally approach Chicago for the water it wants.

PROOF THAT THE job is not easy can be found in the 18-year-old efforts of the Des Plaines, Arlington Heights,

Mount Prospect, Palatine Water Commission (DAMP).

Interstate lawsuits over the diversion of Lake Michigan water thwarted DAMP's request for a lake water allocation from 1969 to 1968.

In 1971, DAMP finally received state authority to divert 35.9 cubic feet per second of lake water for the suburbs, only to have the allocation overturned a year later because of a lawsuit filed by the Metropolitan Sanitary District and the North Shore Sanitary District.

DAMP again requested lake water at a July 1975 public hearing before the Illinois Department of Transportation. The state's decision is expected this summer.

Works Director Gene Willroth told the Illinois Water Resources Commission.

Arlington Heights has suggested the formation of a regional water authority for Northeast Illinois.

WITHOUT DEALING with the obvious political problems in its proposal, village officials say a regional authority is the only sensible solution to the continued depletion of ground water and the allocation of lake water.

It is a suggestion endorsed by Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert.

Historical society seeks village artifacts

The Mount Prospect Historical Society is looking for artifacts. But don't let that word scare you. An artifact is simply an object. It can be anything.

The society already has many historical village items to be displayed in its museum but more would be welcome. What the group is seeking now are contributions from residents. The pieces would be on display, labeled as to the donor.

The artifacts need not be antique. They can be new, a little bit old, very old, modern, 18th Century or contemporary. A bowl, figurine, magazine rack, book, broom, desk, anything. The artifact becomes the property of the society upon donation.

Items may be taken to the museum, 1100 Linneman Rd. Wednesday from 8 to 10 p.m. A society member will be on hand to accept it. For more information, call Kathy MacMahon, 394-9409.

The museum will be officially opened and dedicated at noon July

MEMBERSHIP IN the historical society, by the way, is offered for $3 per year per person, or $5 for a couple, or $1 for students or senior citizens.

RODGER C. KRUSE, 13 of 515 S. Louis St., recently received his Eagle Award at a Court of Honor ceremony. Rodger joined the Boy Scout organization in 1969 when he became a member of Cub Pack 154 sponsored by Lions Park PTA.

For his Eagle Service Project, Rodger worked last summer with the Mount Prospect Public Works Dept. doing the weeding, edging and watering of flower beds and planted areas north of the railroad depot. He also painted and helped straighten the wooden fence there.

DESIGNER PAUL Sells will teach a floral design class next month on four consecutive Monday evenings starting March 1. This is the sixth time the popular class is being offered locally at Busse's Flowers and Gifts, Inc., Elm Street and Evergreen Avenue. Class size is limited and interested residents should sign up at once.

Students will create and take home a different style flower arrangement each week. A modest fee covers all materials except containers. Call or visit the shop to sign up.

Schools

Prospect Hts. Dist. 23

A miniconcert by the Israelievitch Duo will be presented today for students at Eisenhower School, Schoenbeck and McDonald roads, Prospect Heights.

Violinist Jacques Israelievitch is assistant concert master of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. Gail Israelievitch, harpist, is a performing soloist and has played in symphony orchestras.

The program is presented by the school's Parent Teacher Assn.

High School Dist. 214

Freshman orientation and registration information nights for incoming Prospect High School students are scheduled today, Tuesday and Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the school cafeteria 601 W. Kensington Rd., Mt. Prospect.

Parents and students from Lincoln Junior High School will meet today. Parents and students from Miner Junior High School are scheduled to meet Tuesday. River Trails Junior High School and parochial school parents and students will meet Wednesday.

Parents and students who are unable to attend on the designated nights are encouraged to attend one of the other evening sessions. Materials will be made available to students at their respective junior high schools if they are unable to attend any of the meetings.

An audio-visual presentation explaining the high school's curriculum, the distribution of enrollment materials and the distribution of eighth grade testing results will all be on the information night agenda. For information, call 285-0700.

River Trails Dist. 26

River Trails Junior High School will salute the Bicentennial with a musical program "Happy Birthday America — 200 Years of Instrumental and Choral Music" Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the school, 1000 Wolf Rd., Mount Prospect. The program will be preceded by a brief PTA meeting which will include nomination of officers.

In general...

Mary Kooyumjian, specialist in gifted education, will discuss "How Parents and Teachers Can Help to Develop Different Areas of Giftedness in Children" at 9:30 a.m. Monday, in the Dunton Room of Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton, Arlington Heights.

Ms. Kooyumjian is director of the graduate courses in gifted education in the department of special education at Northeastern Illinois University.

The meeting, open to the public, will also include a question and answer period. Ms. Kooyumjian will display materials such as books and games especially suited for gifted children.

Friends of Gifted Children, an organization whose purpose is to promote programs and services for gifted and talented students, will sponsor this program.
